Top of the Line

Andy Casendino and Mark Soukup make up a trio of band members welcoming you to L.H.S.

In the continuing climb upwards in the Eighties, Lexington High School has proven time and again to be on top. We have striven to become the best in all aspects of academics and activities and have continually had success.

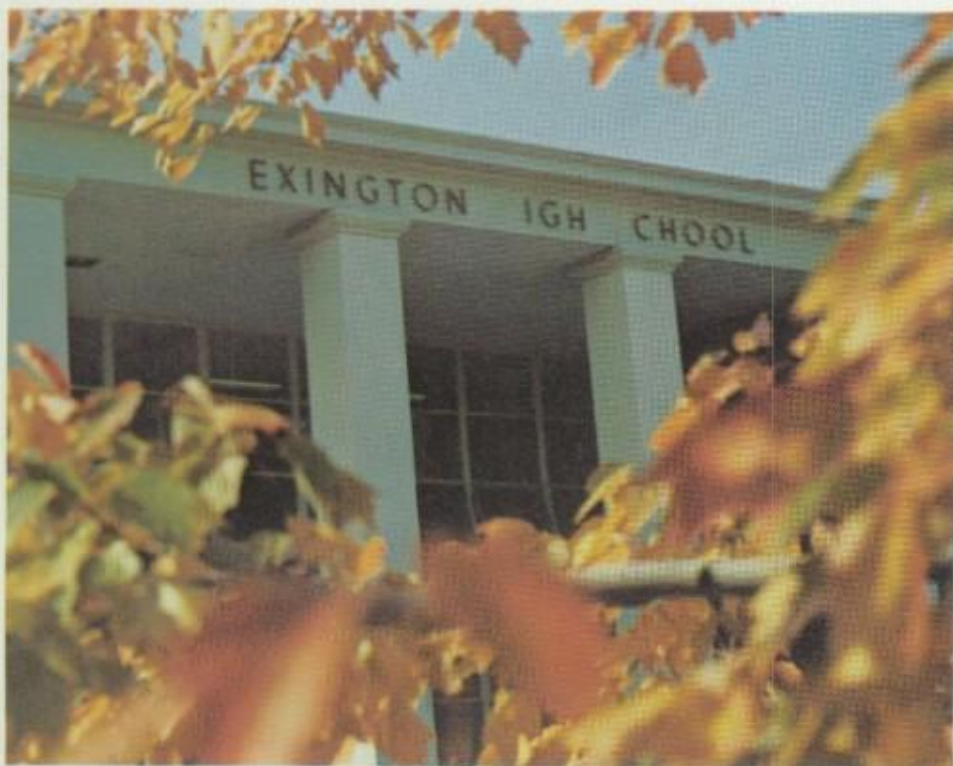

While every new year affects our lives, L.H.S. continues to meet these new changes and still remain on top. One example is our new library. Renovated last summer, it is now larger and brighter, and has become a much more pleasant place in which to work. Another example is the new set of course-distribution requirements which improve an already excellent curriculum. This school year also brings the 1980 presidential elections and the need to face energy and environmental problems. Lexington 1981 is a portrayal of our ability to face the many challenges that we meet and yet we continue to remain on the top of the line.

During this lunch break, Mrs. Koetke proves to Mike Rand that teachers are human too!

Thanks to our 1980 graduates, our campus now takes on a new image.

We've Got You Covered

Lynne O'Connell reviews her homework before French class.

L.H.S. has such a diversity of students and interests that capturing the "real story" is a difficult task. But we have done it, and in doing so we show that L.H.S. is truly on top.

A pig on a leash on a Thursday afternoon in autumn and a football scrimmage outside of C-house did not escape the lens of our cameraman. Millions of expressions which help to create the atmosphere of the school cannot be excluded. Some of these expressions were so typical of the feelings of L.H.S. students that not capturing them would have been a tragedy. Any student can look at the pictures and say, "Hey! I've felt like that before!"

So much happens in our daily lives

Outside of C-house, Chris Fuery and Bill Cole take advantage of the most popular pastime — football.

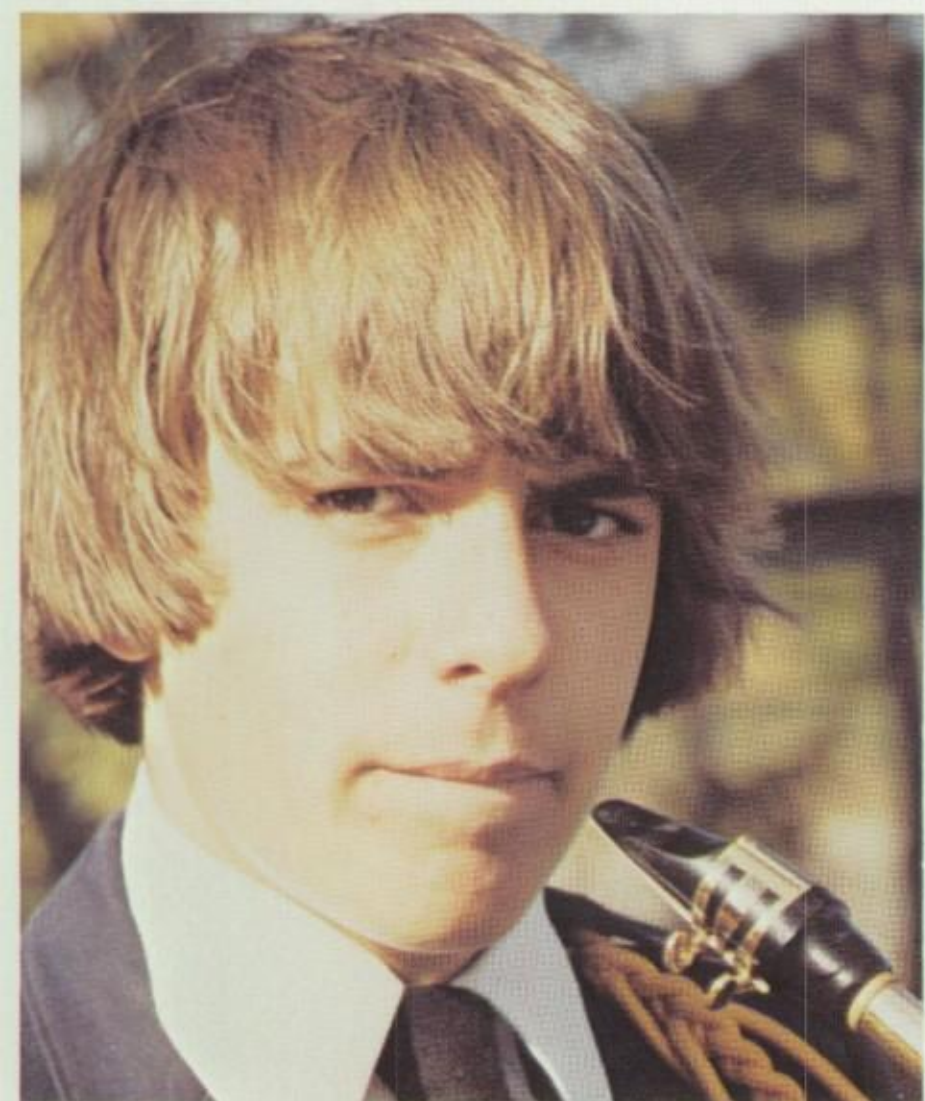

Right: At 2:25, yet another busload of L.H.S.'ers leave the campus.

at school that it is sometimes hard to capture it all in pictures. Looking at a trophy stirs one's memory and imagination and that is almost as good as a face. But obviously for each person the "picture" will be different. One might think back to that extra burst of energy needed to score the winning point in the game, or the endless days of practice. If the trophy was the result of brain work, one might think of the extra tough math problem or the one argument that won the math team or debate tournament. Whatever the situation, the determination and the abilities of L.H.S. students continue to prove that we are on the top of the line.

The morning hours are a good time for John McDonough to catch up on his work.

As Gary Peaks contemplates his next note, the band gets ready to play.

Joan Beamon and friend get set for their next class.

A symbol of our achievement — one of the many trophies displayed in the main hall.

Encompassing an enormous range of activities, student life allows each student to become involved. The three classes are brought together to make a single unit and to display the spirit and pride which makes us come out on top. The bursting of emotions, spirited actions, and serious thoughts of each student enhance life outside of class. Our camaraderie is strong as shown in the success we achieve in such functions as fundraisers, parties, and dances. Whether screaming at a football game, pulling some wild stunt, or working with friends on a club project, student enthusiasm exudes and puts us at the top.

Junior year is probably the toughest academically in a student's high school career, but it is one of the most enjoyable socially. After getting over the initial shock of the amounts of homework, PSAT's are just around the corner. Following this, one needs to face and hopefully survive SAT and Achievement tests. But good times are as abundant as work, and getting to Friday and Saturday night parties is easier now that many friends have licenses, and maybe even cars. Junior class events take on new dimensions. Suddenly those faces shoveling down doughnuts are friends, and one realizes that Junior year is not so bad as was anticipated. Finally prom time arrives and decked out in tuxes or long dresses, everyone enjoys that extra-special and long-awaited night. Looking back on the year, one can see that it was difficult to balance the time between homework and studying for college boards, and somehow find time for friends. Our social lives though, proved to be some of the best ever.

The hangout by F-House is always crowded with Junior boys.

Not too excited about going to their next class are Ben Jones and Robbie Sugarman.

This year Lexington High gained something new — the Class of '83. The students of the class entered their sophomore year with many anxieties; but as the days passed, these anxieties were replaced by new friends and warm experiences. The year was a success for sophomores because of its many happenings, the first of which was the elections. Most students had not experienced such a strong class spirit before. It started with posters on the walls of all buildings and buttons on students' clothing which publicized their favorite candidate. Speeches were made and ballots cast. The results were in: Jon Fanburg for president, Bitsy Hadley for vice-president, Janet Dickerman for treasurer, and Amy Dockser for secretary, along with many others for student house and class council.

These enthusiastic officers were responsible for organizing the various activities of the year. Fundraisers and dances were successful; and before the year ended, the class managed to build up a large bank account. Everyone worked hard in sponsoring these events and all who participated enjoyed themselves, making the year a great success for the newly arrived sophomores.

A Clustering of Companions

The football cheerleaders in their usual position behind the bench.

In a typical day at Lexington High friends play a major role. As the day begins, usually before the first bell, most kids have congregated with their group in a special area they call their own, some in the main quad, seated on benches or huddling in small circles, others outside of various house cafeterias. As the bell sounds stridently, the group scatters and scurries to their next classes. Throughout the day, friends see each other often. During the five-minute passing time they cluster in halls blocking doors, lockers, and traffic. In an occasional free block friends may go down town to eat lunch or may spend time in the library pretending to work or simply sun themselves in the Senior Quad. Lunch, a hurried affair, is spent gossiping about yesterday's happenings or discussing a test or homework due next block. Finally the clock reads 2:25. School ends and people run to lockers, catch a bus, attend a club meeting, go to sports practice, or just hang around in the Center. Friends, even if they don't have many classes together, manage quite well to see each other throughout the day.

Lunching in the Senior Quad is enjoyed by Ronald Fink, Sue McDewall, Emily Luterman, Kirsten Park and friends.

Out of The Confines

Many of the day's social activities take place outside the walls of the campus. Friends meet in the main quad on the first day of school and sign yearbooks there on the last. Students may study during their free blocks and cancelled classes or they may take a much more popular alternative — socializing. One is always assured of spotting friends on his way to class. The four benches in the main quad are in constant use, but maybe a little less frequently during the winter months, and one has a good view of the people on campus from any of these vantage points.

Another popular place for the student body, especially during lunch blocks on warm sunny days, is the Senior Quad. It is always more inviting to study or eat under a tree in full bloom than within the noisy confines of a cafeteria. Frisbee fans are found here as well, whereas football fanatics pass the ball near C-House. The expansiveness of the campus lends itself to the wide variety of gathering places outside before that first class, lunching at noon, or just relaxing during free time, there is always a place where he can be happy, as long as it's outside of a building.

À La Mode

Fashion has never been a universal topic for students at LHS, for our taste in clothes is as diverse as our personalities. In the course of a day one sees everything from the ultra-casual (torn jeans and a T-shirt) to the semi-formal (a dress and high heeled sandals). Somewhere in between these two extremes falls the preppy look (Izods, docksiders, and crew necks) which becomes more popular every day. Neat yet classic is the epitome of the college co-ed. Designer jeans (Calvin Klein, Sasson, and Jordache) still manage to be one of the main staples in everyone's wardrobe. The new baggy jeans, however, did not go over so well, showing that people still prefer to wear their denim skin tight. Even sneakers become fashionable items as their stripes become associated with specific brands. Nikes, Pumas, and Adidas are three campus favorites. Book bags and pocket books take on a new twist this year as parachute material is sewn into bags and labeled "Le Sport Sac". As kids begin to mix their styles of clothes and footwear, each develops his or her own flair for fashion.

The Yearn to Earn

As the cost of education, clothing, and personal extras continues to soar, it is necessary for many students to work in the little free time they may have. Some opt for a job in a drug-store such as CVS or Theater Pharmacy, while others lean towards the food industry in waiting on tables at Bel Canto's, Mario's, or Brigham's. Most enjoy the work as they feel a sense of responsibility and are able to be less dependent on parents. Kids learn what it is like in the business world and at the same time can earn that much welcomed money. It's not always easy to juggle the time between work and study, but these students somehow manage to do it.

Chaotic Scheduling

The floor of the arena as seen from the bleachers.

As the school year comes to a close and everyone has suffered through two days of finals, only one event remains before summer vacation: arena. Arena gives students the freedom to choose the courses they want, at the most convenient time, and with the teacher they desire. Instead of computer scheduling, each student makes up his own "program".

About a week before the arena each student receives a master schedule which he uses to create several possible schedules. Arena begins by walking through the gym and the boys' locker room and being checked off by numerous people at assigned posts. The student is then admitted to the "arena", otherwise known as the field house. Inside there is often chaos as people run around trying to arrange schedules effectively. Every student must stand in line for each subject he plans to take and then must pick up a computer card which insures him a place in the class. He can only hope that once in the field house the classes that he wants are not already filled. Having collected all their cards, all students then go through a final series of checkpoints. Finally the process is complete and the student emerges, dazed but relieved. Summer vacation may then begin.

Before and After

This summer the student library was renovated, and as a result the science building lost two classrooms. Formerly the library was cramped with little room for books or students. Administrators knew that the high school's accreditation would be lowered because of insufficient library facilities. The media center and the library are now one. For the first few weeks of school books were scattered across the floor as the workmen had not yet completed the renovation and the librarians had not had enough time to reshelve all the books. Even in November books were arranged on tables and around the walls. Now the library is more spacious but it continues to be filled with busy students. Oftentimes it is impossible even to find a seat. Although it is the perfect place for quiet study, the new atmosphere of the library still is conducive to socializing.

Monday morning Psychology doesn't seem to agree with Diane Laurendeau or Robin McGinness.

The first class Monday seems to be the longest and most unexciting of the week. Most kids look drowsy and uninterested on Monday mornings, and teachers find it difficult to get students to participate enthusiastically in the class. Often a hand is used to support one's head when ennui sets in. One then tunes out from the teacher and misses hearing an important piece of information. The sad result often is to find a question about it on the next test. Learning from his errors, a student vows to go to bed earlier Sunday night and be more alert on Mondays. But the task is often difficult for many students. Overcoming those Monday blues is an endless battle.

Out to Lunch

David Harrington joins his friends for lunch outside G-classroom windows.

Lunch block is one of the few times during the day when friends can get together to talk. Cafeterias are always crowded by those who choose to eat school food and those who prefer to brown bag it. The noise level is fairly high as people gossip, discuss homework, or compare answers to an earlier test. Each cafeteria has its own regulars so a newcomer is easily recognized. The small tables are made to accommodate six people but usually kids manage to seat quite a few more around the edges and at the corners. The half hour gives plenty of time to eat, but there never seems to be enough time for real relaxation and discussion. The time to go to the next class is swift in coming. Then everyone leaves the cafeterias less organized and less clean than before. In other words, the cafeterias have been used to the best advantage.

Senior Quad is a popular place to eat lunch — especially on a spring day.

Building Confidence

For the sophomores, the first day of school seemed to be the hardest of the whole year. It began in the auditorium where we listened to a talk by Dr. Clune. Homeroom followed, as did many questions when we searched the campus map for the right classrooms. Finally everyone seemed to be settled and ready for the big day. Our homeroom teachers helped to build our self-confidence, and the school didn't seem so big after all. When the bell rang signaling the first class, we all took a deep breath and began the first day of high school. Everyone struggled through the day, with maybe a few mistakes, but, all in all, everything went quite smoothly. When the last bell rang, we were glad that the day was over. Then we ran to meet our friends to talk about our first day as sophomores at L.H.S.

In 1978 the New England Association of Schools and Colleges recommended that Lexington High require a stricter minimum course distribution for graduation. Such requirements for juniors and seniors now consist of the completion of one year of American History, four years of English, and five semesters of physical education. Taking the advice of the N.E.A.S.C., the school adopted "cluster" requirements which are now in effect for sophomores. More types of courses must be taken in order to graduate, but course selection still maintains flexibility. The new system consists of five clusters: Humanities and Performing and Visual Arts, Social and Behavioral Sciences, Natural Sciences and Mathematics, Applied Arts and Sciences, and Physical Education. The Administration believes that these new guidelines will discourage some students from taking just a minimum of courses and specializing in only one area. Such a program will provide a student with a more rounded background, one that will aid his progress academically and culturally in future endeavors.

Dragging ourselves sleepy-eyed into class by 7:55 each morning, we curse the fact that we happen to have a particularly energetic teacher for A-Block. Because of this year's new schedule, the first block in four of the five days is A. This aspect of the schedule was devised to accommodate those junior high students who wish to take courses at the high school. The schedule has been transformed in other ways also. Gone are the days when one could schedule his free block to be H and he could leave school early on Monday and Friday. Since there is no constant lunch block, long lunches have become less frequent. All morning periods run the same daily but the afternoon blocks are shuffled around. All of these changes were made to aid students involved in special programs such as child studies or internships. For such students the change is really welcome.

The Class of '81 continued a tradition by holding Servant Day to raise money for the senior class fund. Various students volunteered to be auctioned to the highest bidder whether it was another student or a teacher. The bidder acquired his or her particular servant with the agreement that his servant would do anything the owner wanted, — almost! On this bizarre October day, girls could be seen walking the halls dressed as elves, bums, and mice. Most of the boys who were bought as servants had to dress up as women. Two servants were seen on campus as a cupid and a big Fig Newton. During lunch blocks many owners put their servants on display. One of the servants was purchased by an art teacher for modeling purposes in her class that day. These servants ranged in price from $1.50 to more than $20, depending on their desirability. This year's servant day was a profitable one and raised several hundred dollars for the seniors.

Getting There

In order to get to school each student must find a mode of transportation which suits him best. The newest form of public transportation is Lexpress which is often more convenient than the MBTA or the school bus. For many students the big yellow school bus from the days spent in elementary school could never be replaced. For those who don't ride a bus, transportation takes on varied forms. A privileged few are able to drive to school in cars belonging to Mom, Dad, or themselves. But those who drive their own car to school must buy a parking sticker for the rear window, for Bill Borg, the parking monitor, has a watchful eye. Less fortunate students walk to school through rain or snow, although such a walk in the spring can often be pleasant. A few agile students even skateboard to school and they have the advantage of being able to "park" their vehicles in a locker. With all of these means of transportation, LHS students have no trouble getting to school.

There is always a crowd of people waiting for the bus at Depot Square.

Election '80

To begin with, students heard as early as July 1979 that Edward Kennedy, U.S. Senator from Massachusetts, would challenge President Carter for the Democratic nomination. As the primary results came in, Carter defeated Kennedy in almost every state, easily winning enough delegates to gain the nomination. Kennedy, however, refused to concede the nomination and tried to call for an open convention in a final effort to defeat Carter. This effort failed and the Carter-Mondale team was the winner for the party nomination.

The Republican race was equally as exciting. Originally the field consisted of six candidates. At the outset, George Bush was leading, Ronald Reagan was second and John Anderson trailed a distant third. After the New Hampshire primary, however, Reagan took the lead. Not long afterwards John Conally, Robert Dole, and Howard Baker withdrew from the race and Anderson switched his party affiliation to that of the "Anderson Coalition", giving voters a third alternative for November's election. In August at the Republican National Convention, Reagan became the Republican nominee and chose George Bush as his running mate.

As the autumn progressed, the full media blitz about presidential politics at the voters continued. Reagan said Carter mishandled the economy and Carter said Reagan focused on war making. Anderson, meanwhile, was busy transmitting an image of himself as "the real alternative". As November 4 approached, we heard news that the American hostages in Iran would soon be released. Carter hoped to gain popularity if this release should occur but nothing came of the situation. On November 5 we learned that Ronald Reagan was to become the 40th president of the United States.

Selection of class rings takes place at Driscoll Jewelers in the Center.

In their junior year students have the opportunity to buy a class ring. Although there are many styles, each ring exhibits the spirit of Lexington with the Minuteman engraved on one side and the letter L, surrounded by the words, Achievement, Wisdom, and Scholarship, engraved on the other. The ring stands as a symbol of our high school days and reminds us of our school experience in patriotic Lexington.

Many times facial expressions can be a vent for moods. When frustration takes over during a test, and screaming in confused agony is not allowed, making a face helps to release pent up emotions. Depression, boredom, and ecstasy can all be reflected in a face, and these emotions are brought out every day at school. The moods are caused by a variety of factors: failing a test, feeling exhausted because of lack of sleep, or becoming excited because of a canceled class. Good moods can be the result of high grades, parties, and the anticipation of the weekend. A look on a face can represent thousands of emotions common to all students.

Half Time

Almost once every month there is a Professional Development Day, more commonly referred to by students as a half day. Teachers remain in school for meetings and students have a free afternoon. At 11:15 the bell rings and students rush to find friends and make plans for the day. Two of the favorite restaurants in the Center are Mario's (for the pizza eating crowd) and Brigham's (for the hamburger and french fry lovers). Peking Garden attracts those who choose to eat oriental style. With the junior high and elementary kids also free on these days, lines are discouraging at these restaurants and the wait is frequently half an hour. After lunch some students opt for a trip to the Mall on the Lexpress, a discussion on the Green, or a shopping visit to some of the local stores. One can say that these half days help break up the monotony of a full five-day week and give students extra time to be with friends.

This mass exodus could only indicate that it's a well earned half day.

With Yearbook and Pamphlets on hand, this college representative prepares to answer the questions of Anne Sinek.

Every Wednesday in the fall from nine to eleven, the high school is visited by various college representatives from all parts of the country. Each representative sets up a display in the Career center in E-house. Pamphlets and catalogues are laid out on tables and the men and women come prepared to answer the students' questions. These two hours a week in the Career Center draw many students. Everyone gets to "visit" the colleges they are interested in or are applying to. Students can learn about the different aspects of many colleges as so many representatives are present. College fairs give every student the chance to learn about colleges and universities without having to leave Lexington.

Sport Spirit

Lexington High's school spirit peaks around the time of the Thanksgiving Day football game. Fans as well as players were inspired at this year's Thanksgiving game pep rally by cries of "Burlington Bites the Dust." Before the big game, spirited students displayed their cars and trucks decorated with blue and gold streamers and balloons in a Homecoming parade which travelled through Lexington Center. At the Thanksgiving game, as at all other football games, the Junior Class sold candy and Lexington High School hats. The National Honor Society supplied the hungry fans with warm pretzels. Inspired by the cheerleaders, the pep squad, the shouts of students and all other Lexington High school football fans, the Minutemen went on to defeat the rivals, the Red Devils of Burlington. Lexington's school spirit does not end here. Those loyal football enthusiasts eagerly await all other athletic competition throughout the year.

Some Enchanted Evening

May 30, 1980, was a warm spring evening, and there was great anticipation for two hundred juniors who were to attend the Junior Prom at Caruso's Diplomat in Saugus. Everyone was elegantly dressed in formal tuxedos and gowns. It was evident that the prom committee worked diligently to make this an exceptional event and Caruso's proved to be the perfect setting for this special evening. The guests enjoyed a roast beef dinner; then the band for the night played a mixture of slow and fast songs. The slow numbers were far more popular than the fast songs, although the fast ones attracted those who wished to show off their disco steps. The playing of the theme song "Precious and Few", brought the end of an evening of enchantment. The evening was a milestone long to be remembered by everyone who attended.

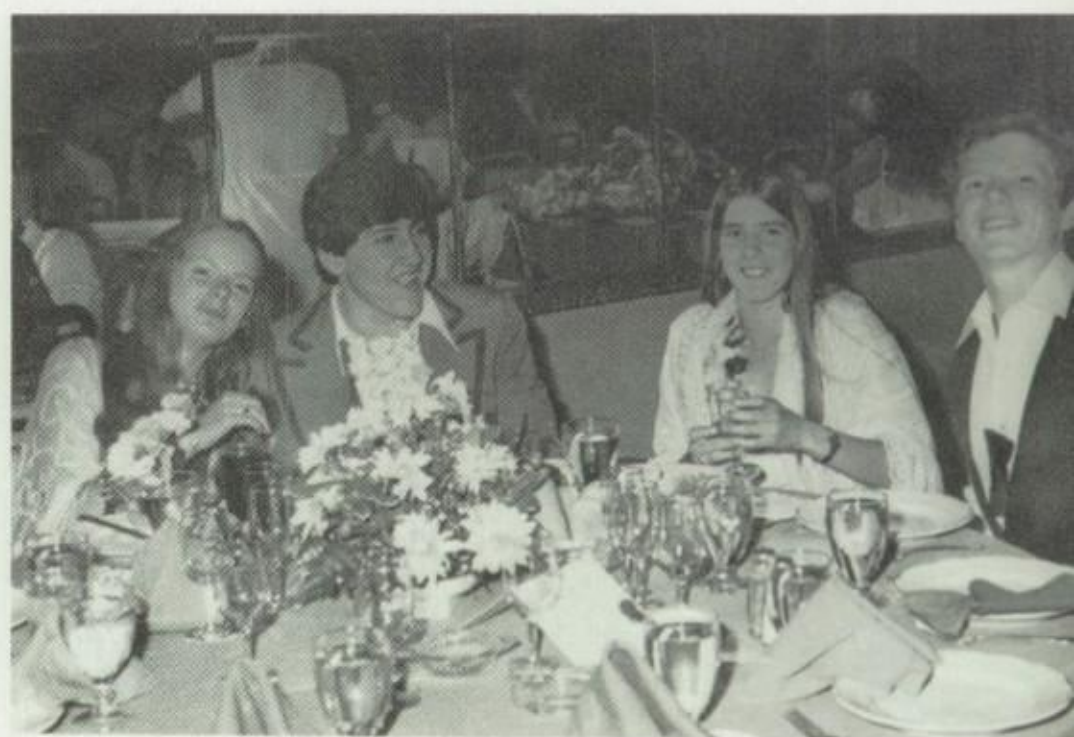

One of the few couples on the floor, Annemarie DiSilva and Mike Sadeghpour enjoy the moment.

The last slow song of the evening prompted all the couples to get out on the dance floor.

Academics

On Top of It

The academic opportunities at LHS are endless. They range from the required History and English courses to the exciting electives of psychology and sociology. The courses are all structured to prepare students for the future, and there are special courses designed for each student no matter what his or her interests are. For the student who prefers a less structured schedule and more individual attention there are Alternative Education Programs. The students at LHS have all sorts of freedom to take whatever types of courses they want and they often have the chance to choose their teachers. Allowing for this freedom some may find it hard to believe that LHS is nationally recognized for its superiority in academics, however, the standards are extremely demanding and the faculty is extraordinarily well prepared to meet the challenges of excellence in education.

Foreign Languages are an essential part of the curriculum at L.H.S. Students may choose from a variety of courses such as French, Latin, German, Spanish, and Italian. In these classes students gain knowledge of the countries where each language is spoken. Field trips, festivals, food and filmstrips make learning easy and fun. Many types and levels of courses are offered, such as grammar, conversation, literature, and independent study. The stylistics courses offer preparation for the language achievement tests. For students who have passed or met the qualifications for the courses offered, there is independent study. This is an individualized search into a language through lessons with one teacher. The Foreign Language Department offers something for everyone, while providing a practical and interesting education.

The Mathematics and Science Departments at Lexington High School offer a variety of courses, which range from those concentrating on essential skills to others which are preparation for Advanced Placement tests.

The Math Department provides courses in algebra, geometry, pre-calculus and calculus. In addition, a large selection of computer-related mathematics courses are available. These courses give the student the opportunity to work independently, at his own pace in the computer laboratory under the supervision of his teacher.

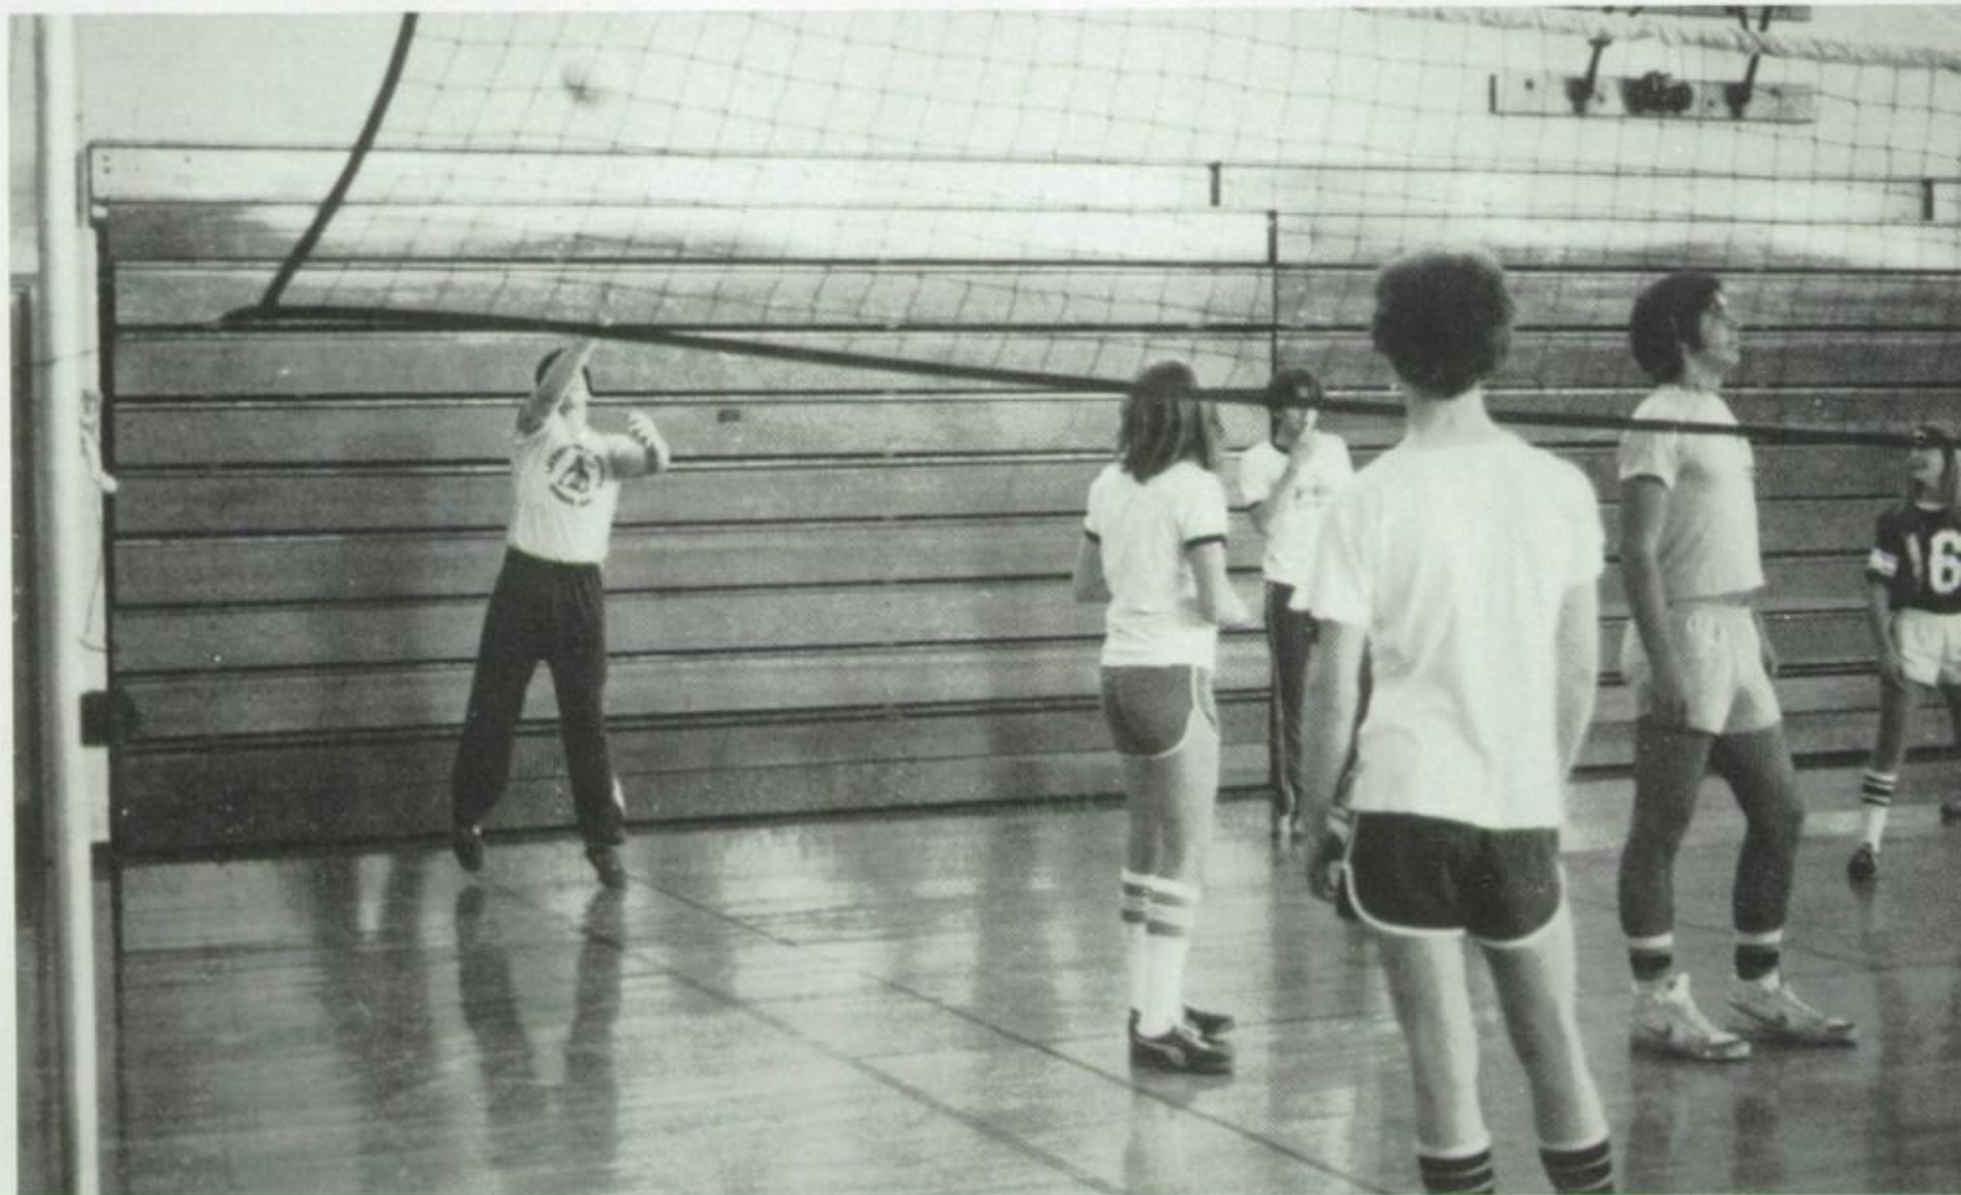

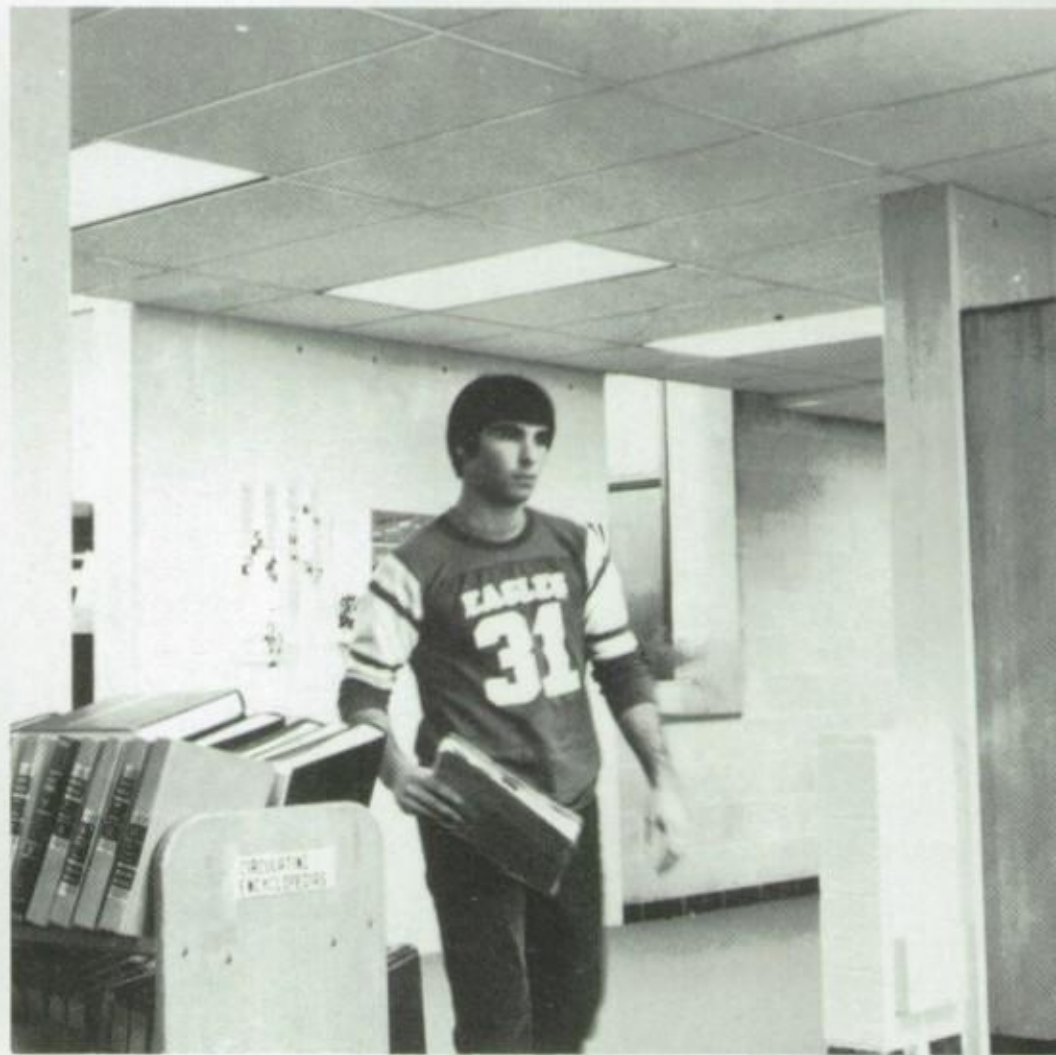

Annual competitions such as the Massachusetts Association Math League (MAML) and the Mathematics Association of America

(MAA) show approximately 150 Lexington students participating. These tests have given recognition to the math department as being one of the best in New England. The Math Team, organized by Nancy Mack, continues to be outstanding, reflecting the high quality of education provided by the Math Department. Science courses in biology, chemistry, and physics are taught for all levels. These courses include laboratory exercises, lectures by guest speakers and teachers, and of course, reading assignments. The Science program, designed to accomodate all students, allows them to explore their surroundings through experiment and observation.

The Business courses at the High School are courses designed to prepare students for specialized work after graduation. They are not required courses, however, what is taught in these courses is invaluable to all future careers. Whether you take Shorthand which speeds up your notetaking or Typing which allows your hand to rest for a moment or two, your skills are bound to be improved.

This year the Physical Education Department continues to offer a variety of activities for any type of student. There are many strenuous activities like weight training and aerobics which gives students a chance to work individually, and there are many team sports for the person with a highly competitive spirit. Regardless of what activity a student selects there is always lots of team spirit and enthusiasm in LHS sports.

Marco Dirks explains to his friend the advantages of reading Olympic magazine during class.

English, or its Alternatives . . .

The English Department has lessened the number of course choices available this year, but continues to offer traditional courses in composition and literature, enriched by electives such as poetry, drama and vocabulary. Teaching fluent communication through clear and concise composition is a continual goal. Some of the changes in the English curriculum are the addition of a grammar course and the development of a new A.P. program. Although ultimately the goal is to improve basic skills for each student, there are still a variety of courses available so that any student may attain this goal.

L.H.S. offers alternative types of education which many students are involved in. One program, called the Alternative Program, is run by Michelle Koetke and Alan November. This program is for students at all academic levels and it gives them a chance to have more personal relationships with teachers and classmates. This program occupies two rooms in J-House which the students help to control, and they often use them to do their homework or just to quietly relax. The Alternative Program runs courses which are now open to the public, and the students have an opportunity to help with these classes along with the teachers. Some of these courses are offered during the day, but in addition there are evening classes and specialized programs of mountain climbing, ski trips, and various other outdoor activities. The major areas of courses offered are physical education, home economics, social studies, and English. The program is very involved in community affairs, and in the past have supported activities such as Ox-fam, dinners for the elderly, and many more.

Past and Present

The Social Studies Department offers many interesting and worthwhile courses. United States history is the only course which is required of juniors. It shows the origins of the United States' economic, political and social status. Another course that is offered is World Civilization, which covers the historical development of western civilization, from ancient to modern times. Psychology, Family Life, and the Justice System, as it applies to criminals, are courses offered to students who wish to pursue the social sciences. All courses enable the student to voice his opinion and to strengthen his knowledge of the many social issues of the past and present.

Activities

The yearbook is really a history portraying the highlights of the long school year. The production sounds easier than it is. Long nights of hard work and frantic deadline meetings are typical of the staff's efforts. Staying up until early hours is an experience never to be forgotten. To prepare for the task of developing a winning yearbook, Associate Editor Melyne Zartarian and Student Life Editor Amanda Vaughan attended a yearbook workshop held at Amherst College this past summer. This experience and the help of our Herff-Jones representative John Carrier, Advisor Margaret Kinley, and photographer Mr. Farnham, showed us the "ins and outs" of producing the 1981 yearbook. As Editor Lisa Lichtenstein can truthfully say, LHS is ON TOP OF THE LINE!

Lisa, when's my deadline?? ... Mel, can you call ... Jon, where are our pictures? ... She has to see everything? ... I broke another cropper! ... one pica ... call Mr. Farnham? ... Who's this kid??? ... prisoners ... captions at midnight ... We did it!!!

Being very careful not to make a mistake, Lisa Lichtenstein pecks away at the typewriter.

Smiling with relief, Amanda Vaughan makes her deadline.

"Is it all worth it?" asks Melyne Zartarian.

Debating to Victory

Lexington High School's Debate Team has reached national prominence. For three years it has captured the state championships in all divisions and has sent members on to the national tournaments. Debate is taught as a full credit course by the American history teacher Ray Karas, who is the team's coach. Led by Co-captains Paula Bonnell and Mark Fallick, team members put in a great deal of time researching the national high school topic for this year "Resolved: That the federal government should initiate and enforce safety guarantees on consumer goods." Traveling to tournaments as far away as New York and Maine almost every weekend, both novice and varsity teams maintained outstanding records. "It's gonna hurt . . ." "The overwhelming proportion of the world's population lives on the grinding edge of poverty; for them, economic growth is an absolute imperative if they are to survive."

Paula Bonnell gestures a look of confusion.

Mathletes

Lexington High's Math Team again made it to states, New Englands and nationals. Last year the team struggled to replace their leader, Stanley G. Boyton, and came up with the right answer in Mrs. Mack. Under her guidance the team quickly regained momentum and started its annual drive to the top. As always the key to success lay in a sharp mind and a firm grasp of mathematics, which the students of Lexington, of course, have in abundance. This year the team will sponsor both team and individual events (it takes all types) as it strives once more to be the real #1.

Student House

The Student House, composed of ten representatives and four officers from each class, meets to formulate and express student opinions on school policy. A representative to the policy-making Administrative Team meetings conveys these feelings to both faculty and staff.

This year, led by President Dean Madden and Vice-President Laura Cella, the Student House has addressed many issues. The Elections Committee, in addition to running all student elections, has this year overhauled the entire elections process to insure maximum fairness. The Social Service Committee is working again on sponsoring charitable activities for such groups as CARE and Oxfam. The guest speaker program, an enormous success last year, is being planned for two dates this year, one in January and one in April. Local experts in such diverse areas as politics, economics, international relations, and particle physics will address special assemblies. The Communications Committee is, naturally, striving to improve communications between student, staff, and faculty. Several new projects are also being undertaken this year, including an examination of the tenure process, a student exchange program with neighboring schools, and possible student polls on major issues. Overall, the Student House enables students to contribute both to the formation of school policy and, more importantly, to the school community as a whole.

The Student Board of Appeals consists of six students — two elected representatives of each class — and two faculty members. It functions as one of the steps in the appeals process provided for by the School Committee. If a student feels his rights have been violated or something unfair has happened, he is entitled to a hearing before the Board. After hearing the case, the Board reaches a decision as to whether any action must be taken; it has the power to make recommendations, but its decisions can be overturned by the principal or another higher authority.

The Executive House Council at L.H.S. plays an important part in both community and school related activities. As well as fundraising for different charities, including contributing funds to Globe Santa in December, they held a luncheon for both new and incoming foreign students at the start of the school year. Another activity sponsored by the Council was the Christmas Party for the Special Education students D-House. This party was well attended and a success.

President Greg Smith, along with many enthusiastic members, makes the Executive House Council a productive and important part of the student body at L.H.S. It certainly contributes to our being on Top of the Line!

Government for the Students.

The Senior Class Council began their task of raising money and planning activities almost as early as the doors of Lexington High School opened for the 1980-81 year. This Class Council worked together to plan such activities as a donut eating contest and a servant day, not to mention the numerous number of other fundraisers. The Senior Class Council's enthusiasm and dedication have helped to make the Class of 1981 one that all will remember.

The Junior Class Council got off to their start by sponsoring many fundraising activities. Their devotion to a classmate Danny Murphy, injured in a diving accident, was shown in several ways. The Junior Class Council adopted a "Danny Murphy Fund" and raised quite a bit of money. They also held concerts as well as other fundraisers which brought unity among the Junior Class. The council's determination resulted in a profitable year.

This year's Sophomore Class Council got off to a great start by having one of the most successful magazine drives ever. This class is responsible for planning many activities and fundraising events. The Sophomore Class Council has the sparkle to make their remaining years at Lexington High School both memorable and profitable.

Dancin' Dreams

Junior Prom Committee

For many Juniors, one of the highlights of the year is the Junior Prom held at the end of the school year. This year the Junior Prom Committee chose to have the prom at the Sheraton-Tara Hotel in Framingham during the first week in June. Weekly Prom Committee meetings and an active group of more than twenty-five students, have resulted in extensive planning of what was a very successful prom. Various fundraising activities were arranged in order to deter the cost of the prom. These included a Thanksgiving and a Christmas raffle, concession stands at football games this past season, a Christmas Dance, refreshment sales on various Parent-Teacher days, and other related activities. Car washes, a school fair, selling bumper stickers, class T-shirts and Lexington hats were other activities that were planned in order to supplement the Junior Prom Fund. The menu, band, and decorations were chosen early in the year, and this enabled the Committee members to focus their attention on the important issue of fundraising. The result was overwhelmingly successful.

One of the many pleasures of being a senior is the opportunity to participate in all the outings, shows, and fun we've worked so hard to achieve. Although friends, laughter, and special happenings will always remain with us, the most meaningful and memorable occasion of our last year at L.H.S. is the long awaited Senior Prom. The Prom Committee has diligently worked throughout the year organizing fund-raisers and making arrangements so that May 28, 1981 will be a special night for every senior. As this special evening approaches, anticipation and excitement mounts as the final preparations take place. Flowers and tuxes are ordered, dresses are altered and hair will be coiffed, as L.H.S. seniors prepare to go to the Danversport Yacht Club and dance the night away to the sounds of "Perfections". This year's Senior Prom is a special occasion that will fulfill all our expectations and hopes for the perfect finale of our three years at Lexington High.

MUSKET

For those students with journalistic talents, the school newspaper Musket, provides an outlet to exercise these talents. The goal of the Musket is to inform, educate, and to offer different perspectives of issues to the student body and staff. The paper welcomes any contributions from any interested writers, photographers, and cartoonists, as well as comments and criticisms from its readers. The editorial staff is responsible for assigning and editing the articles for each edition. Before each issue of the Musket goes to press, the staff participates in an 8-10 hour layout session. The various newspaper departments include News, Features, Editorials, Sports, Photography, and Business. A few of the student related issues which highlighted the news and editorial pages were the draft registration, the lack of announcements, and the G-House locker problem. Under the guidance of Co-Editors-in-Chief Jane Papademetriou and Andrew White and Advisor Sam Kafrissen, the Musket furnished informative and effective journalism for L.H.S.

Publishing for Pleasure

Folio, Lexington High's art and literary magazine, provided a unique opportunity for students to express themselves creatively. In the past, Folio has come out once a year, and the major portions of the year have been devoted to solicitation of creative material and to selling the magazine. The club was mainly dormant during the month and a half it took to print the magazine. This year, Folio plans to print two or more issues. Thus, students have not one but several opportunities to be published, and they have more than one opportunity to read the work of fellow students. The magazine exists only because there is creative work in the student body. In the past Folio has always come off the press well and has been a unique part of L.H.S.

Que Pasa?

This year the Spanish Club has had a tremendous response. The burst of enthusiasm has doubled the membership. The club started the year off with a "fiesta". Members had a delicious dinner consisting of a variety of Spanish and Mexican dishes, ranging from chile to enchiladas. The evening continued with Spanish music and dancing and a limbo contest. The enthusiasm and cooperation of the Spanish Club members made it the success that it was!

N.H.S.'ers of L.H.S.

Every year, a number of Juniors and Seniors are selected to be inducted into the National Honor Society. These students are chosen on the basis of scholarship, leadership, character, and contributions to the school and the community. The organization's purposes are to honor those outstanding individuals and to provide worthwhile services to our surrounding community and school. Its main goal is to raise money which is given as scholarships to needy and deserving non-N.H.S. Seniors planning to continue their education. This is accomplished through such fundraisers as the sale of pretzels at football games, candy canes at Christmas, and lollipops on Valentine's Day. In addition, the National Honor Society assists in running student government elections and visits residents at nursing homes and state hospitals. All members are expected to contribute their share to these activities, all of which are student-run and organized. This year, President Jesse Fried, Vice-President Eleni Cambourelis, Treasurer Lisa Lichtenstein, and Secretary Sandra Liu, led the organization through one of its most successful years.

Exploring Abroad

AFS (American Field Service) is an organization that brings foreign students to the U.S. for a year and also sends American students abroad for a summer or an entire year. The AFS student club provides an organization through which the foreign students and other high school students can get together to socialize, to learn about each other's cultures and generally to have a good time.

This year in Lexington, our guests are three AFS students: Antoine Le-

Comte from France, Jackie Palacios from Ecuador, and Carlos de la Pena from Mexico. There are also five YFU students (Youth for Understanding — another exchange program) this year at the high school: Jerry Templeman from Holland, Jens Anderson from Denmark, Hauke Miller from Germany, Adriana Jimenez from Colombia, and Mistuya Kasai from Japan. Some of the AFS club's activities are fundraisers, with money going to benefit AFS scholarships. Other activities are purely social. This year the club has a membership of about eighty-five students.

Some of our activities this year have included a pot-luck supper, a large and successful Halloween Party, a sleigh-ride, a square dance, a canoe trip, a weekend exchange with New York City, various parties, and the Fruit Drive Fundraiser in December.

One of the most active and exciting clubs at L.H.S. is the famous French Club, advised by Rafe Jenanyan. Among the many fundraising activities organized by the Club is the elegant candlelit Dinner and Dance held in December. In addition, the club raises money to send students to Quebec, Canada for the week of February vacation. Assisted by Co-presidents David Marin, Karen Zeckel, and Jill Stouffer, the club is a social and well-attended organization, as evidenced by the parties and fetes which seem to be so popular.

Acting it Out

The Drama Club has been a leading organization this year with its many enthusiastic members which include students involved in acting, stage crew, make-up, and costumes. Ms. Valerie Norwood, the club's terrific advisor, leads meetings of various types with rehearsals for the next production or discussions of club plans. Most of the great effort, though, can be attributed to the devoted members.

This dedication can be seen in the many superb productions put on by the Drama Club. Each and every one is applauded by all attending, and the community and school members have continually been pleased.

Rocking Jazz

Rock-Jazz Class gives musicians the opportunity to play with other musicians, to learn how to improvise and to perform in front of a live audience. Sandy Peaslee, with her wealth of knowledge, has provided the students at Lexington High School with a structured atmosphere in which they can improve their musical skills. These skills will last them a lifetime. The class is divided into two levels: Rock-Jazz 1 and Rock-Jazz 2. Jazz 1 is comprised of one group, Jazz 2 of three groups. Both sections perform in front of the student body. The performance dates were January 7, March 12, and May 26, and one and all agreed that they were great concerts.

Throughout the year the club tours hospitals, attends medical seminars, and holds several bloodmobiles open to the public. For Christmas the members delivered handmade gifts to Lexington Nursing Homes. The club survives on our never ending fundraisers such as bake sales, candy sales, and car washes. Cheering Us On

Support for the L.H.S. teams always contributes to our continual victories. In the form of our enthusiastic cheerleaders for both fall and winter sports, we seem to always have a spirited attitude. Led by Captain Chris Visalli, the squad practices long hours after school and during their free time and is always ready to lead our team in a variety of cheers throughout exciting games.

Twirling to the Beat

Fluffy white hats, a royal blue uniform, white boots, and, of course, a baton. This is the attire that the Lexington High School Majorettes wear. Each week the majorettes make up routines to the various types of music that the band plays. During the football season the majorettes practice their halftime routine every day during school with the band and after school to recorded music. Between pep rallies, parades, and football games, the majorettes keep very active. They are proud to be a part of, and contribute to, the spirit for our football team!

The Leaders

Because of the strong demand for the Student Leader program, the class has expanded into two sections. Along with Miss Swindler, the new advisor this year is Mr. Matthews.

Although separate, the two classes combine for most of their activities. The familiar, "Special Olympics", has become a Student Leader tradition. Much work and preparation goes into this day. All leaders work together and form committees to get the work done. In the past, this day has proved to be quite a success for all.

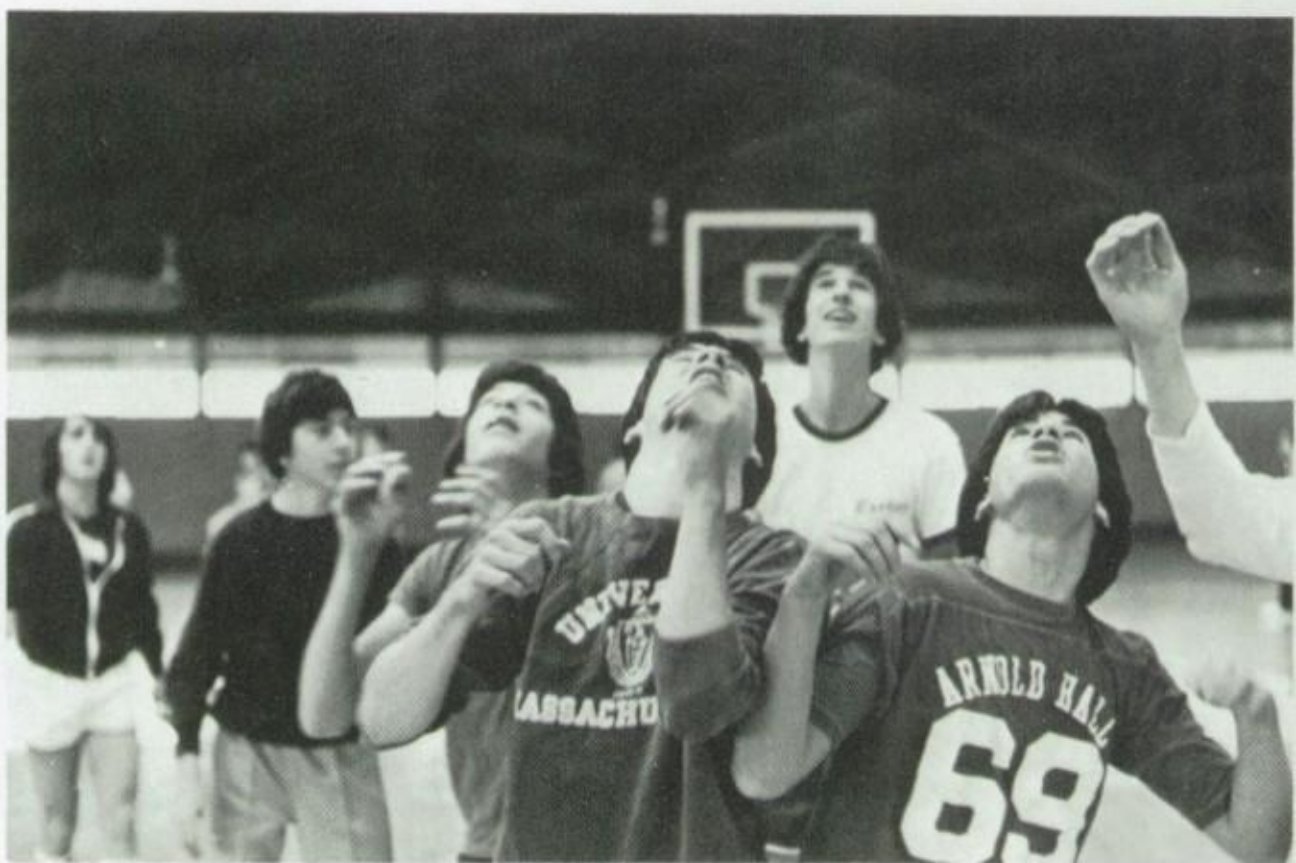

An activity new to Student Leaders this year is the "Smoke-Out". The leaders went into every sixth grade class in Lexington to help kids deal with the peer-pressures to smoke. This three-day program was also quite a success.

During the year the Student Leader classes are taught by students themselves. Some Student Leaders actually end by teaching gym classes. Leadership qualities are emphasized. The program is a profit to all who enter.

"Ready about! Hard a Lee!" "Jibe Ho!" exclaimed the excited and intrepid sailors of the LHS Sailing Club. The members of this club enjoy a day or two a week on the rippling waters of the Charles River along with a beautiful view of the Boston skyline which sets the perfect atmosphere. The experience of sailing is glorious and exciting to all; heeling as the wind blows strongly into the sails, hiking out into oblivion; and feeling the warmth of the sun on your face. It is an adventure for all, whether experienced or not.

Out on the Slopes

With ski conditions the best that they have been in years, L.H.S.'s Ski Club is active and out on the slopes. Part of L.H.S. for almost twenty-five years, the Ski Club is one of the school's largest clubs with over 200 members by the end of the ski season.

The annual Ski Sale is the Ski Club's fundraising activity, using the profits and the membership fee to help defray the cost of trips. This year's ski sale was the best ever — over $2,500 profit! The trips themselves are mostly for one day to popular ski areas, but there are also two annual overnights: one to Killington and one to Sugarloaf.

This year the club had two new advisors; Miss Johnson, a part-time teacher in the Reading Center, and Dr. Clune. The officers for this year were:

President — Marty Shields

Vice President — Alan Jacobs

Sue Van Hook (cross country)

Secretary — Ted Baturin

Treasurer — Sonya Gettner

Black Student Union

The Black Student Union is a group of minority Lexington High School students, and other interested students, from Boston and Lexington who work together with the following goals in mind:

1. To discuss and resolve issues that may confront minority students and other interested students who attend a predominantly white educational institution such as Lexington High School.

2. To work on fund raising projects such as bake sales and Soul Food Dinner, in an effort to raise scholarship funds for students who may wish to continue their careers after graduation.

3. To become involved in cultural activities such as Black History displays, lectures, artists and field trips; with the objective in mind of developing and expanding the knowledge minorities in America for the benefit of all students attending Lexington High School.

My Fair Lady

The annual musical is an important aspect of the school year. Coming together with all their talent are dancers, singers, and actors, all striving for the same goal — a perfect performance.

This year, the musical chosen was My Fair Lady, a musical adaptation of Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion. Rehearsals are held every day after school, and much work is put into the spectacular production. The annual L.H.S. musical is a well-known event, attended by faculty, students, and community members alike. This year, My Fair Lady proved to be one of the most acclaimed musicals and best attended ever.

Andy Casendino works diligently on the blocking of a scene.

Rehearsals for the chorus of My Fair Lady take place every afternoon.

Voices Raised in Chorus

Under the direction of Mr. Joseph Didomenico and Mrs. Sandi Peaslee, the Mixed Chorus always has an exciting, eventful year with several concerts and many rehearsals to back them up. Among the concerts that the Chorus performs in are the December Seasonal Concert, the Winter Choral Concert in January, and of course the Pops concerts in May. Dedicated singers can be found in M1, "The Chorus Room", almost any time during the day. The 150 plus members of the chorus meet twice weekly year round to practice music, sing good songs, and have a fun class with a wonderful group of people.

This classroom is the typical setting for the ever-popular chorus classes.

The Hallelujah Chorus is the Grand Finale to the Winter Choral Concert, encompassing both instruments and voices together.

Numerous Notemakers

The Lexington High School Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Eleftherios Eleftherakis, rehearses for and performs many concerts throughout the year. Orchestra is a full credit course, rehearsing four hours per week. The group performed at the Seasonal Concert, the Winter Orchestra Concert, and at the Spring Pops Concert. Some students perform solos and participate in small ensembles during informal concerts throughout the year. Thanks to Mr. E, the LHS Orchestra is one of the best in the state.

Violinists flutists, and oboeists contribute to the total effect.

The cellists are truly noteworthy and play an important part in the music of L.H.S.

Accomplished violinist Susan Wolf concentrates intently on her music.

A wave of applause engulfs the Winter Choral Concert players.

Melodious Musicmakers

Concert Choir is a group of approximately forty singers selected through auditions in June of every year. The members represent different musical voices which combine to produce one harmonic sound. The rehearsals are held in and out of school at least two times per week and the performances are held in areas of Lexington such as Cary Memorial Library. This year's group was even involved in an exchange program with the Plainview, New York, Concert Choir. The financing for this trip was acquired through pretzel sales and a very successful sing-a-thon.

Concentrating intently on their music, Concert Choir members take their cues from Mrs. Peaslee.

Beaming proudly at the performance of the Concert Choir, Mrs. Peaslee prepares to take a bow.

Bobby Hager and Peter Berggren study the notes in preparation to sing.

Mad for the Melody

The respected Mr. D. (DiDomenico) gestures to his madrigal choir as they learn to perfect the notes.

At the beginning of every school year, "Mr. D" prepares his acute ears for the madrigal choir auditions. "Mr. D" searches for the best sound and blend of voices to perform in his choir. Only fifteen people make it, so one has to have a good voice. One also has to be a member of mixed chorus to even try out.

After auditions "Mr. D" works hard to teach his choir the beautiful music he has selected, but it's not just the music that makes madrigals beautiful, it's the devotion of the students. Every one works hard to please "Mr. D". He's demanding, a hard-worker, but, most of all, a great conductor and a great individual.

Madrigals will be doing concerts at Cary Library and have done the winter choral concert and caroling in the Center during the holiday season.

The choir works as a group to achieve the beautiful sounds it is well known for. From the starting note on the pitch pipe to the nodding of the beats by the leader, Madrigal Choir is devotion to the music and devotion to "Mr. D".

Faces of the singers are concentrated in effort.

Marching to the Beat

Throughout the school year, the Lexington High School Band played at many school and town functions. During the fall the marching band played pre-game and halftime shows and helped to psych up the crowds at football games. The marching band also played at pep-rallies and in town parades. This year the marching band was under the direction of Ms. Judy Allen.

The concert band, under the direction of Mr. Donald Gillespie, performed at the Special Olympics, at the Spring Pops Concert, on the bandstand in Hastings Park, and at graduation exercises. A smaller group of band members entertained the spectators at home basketball games. The concert band held its annual exchange with Freedom High School in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania.

Flagging Them Down

Carl Peterson demonstrates his talent with the tuba.

This year the Lexington High School Marching Band had an added attraction, a colorful flag troupe. The flag troupe was created by the band's new marching director, Judy Allen. The troupe started out with seven regular girls from the band. But, as the season went on, and interest grew, more girls from outside the band joined. The girls choreographed many routines to accompany the band's music in football games and in parades. They put in long, strenuous hours at practice during band and after school. The troupe was led by senior Co-captains Janet MacArthur and Sue Bowyer.

This year was just a start. Next year, with the experience the girls have acquired, they hope to make their performance more spectacular.

Contemplating the Next Move

This year, because of an energetic recruiting drive, the Chess Club, with forty members, far exceeded the membership of the last few years. The new club consists of a few talented, if not a little conceited, players and a large number of promising amateurs.

The never-resolved search for the Chess Club supervisor caused much mental duress in the mind of the president, from which he has not recovered. As in the past, however, this vital position was temporarily filled by Mr. Steele. The "boy wonder" of chess, President David Wolfe, successfully put down several insurrections and rebellions in the club; his erratic shenanigans were the primary cause for his frequent loss of power.

Throughout the year, many strange variants of chess were frequently played. Games ranged from fast paced "bughouse" to the confusing play of "kriegspiel". Stranger games, most notably played by Merlinus Ambrousis and his sidekick Jim Wilson, include: "laser chess", "deflection", and chess in multi-dimensions.

Make one note, however, on the environment of the Chess Club locale. The habit of the G-House management of turning out the lights promptly at four o'clock was a great inconvenience to serious chess playing. Anyone interested in joining the Chess Club next year should just look for the dark cafeteria at the end of the Main Hall . . .

Coping With Divorce

The Divorced Kids Group is designed for kids having similar situations and experiences. The free discussions are based on feelings, good or bad, as a result of divorced parents. Mr. Schofield, an E-House guidance counselor, organizes but does not lead the discussions. He plays ringmaster, but the students are the body of the circus.

This great organization helps kids with similar problems to share them with those who understand what it is all about.

Coping With Death

A new group has developed this year in order to provide counseling and support for students who have lost a parent through death.

The Loss of Parent Through Death Group (L.O.P.D.) has meetings once a week for students who are interested in dealing with issues that arise, such as single parenting, step-parenting, loss, and guilt. L.O.P.D. has already given valuable help to these students. In a joint meeting with the Divorced Kids Group; Bob Weiss, an expert on single parent families, came to speak to the group. L.O.P.D. plans on having more activities such as other guest speakers and by visiting other schools.

L.O.P.D. is a very important group which is trying to help students deal with death, a subject which has been rarely discussed at Lexington High School.

Xerox . . . Xerox . . . Xerox

The Media Aides act as professionals by servicing and helping to run the school's audio-visual equipment. The Aides' responsibilities are varied, included videotaping programs for classroom use, making films, and repairing old films. The Aides provide these services by raising money by the Xerox machine and the little store, but mostly by selling sweatshirts so the Aides can buy better equipment to service the needs of the school.

Philatelists and Numismatists

After several years of absence from the High School, the Stamp and Coin Club was renewed single-handedly by President Cathy Wilson. So far, only a very active stamp division has been established, but coin collectors are expected to appear by next year.

In monthly meetings, serious philatelists gather to view new purchases, make trades, and look up the value of their prize beauties.

"Hey, Cath, can I see the Scott's again?" "Are you sure only 2¢?" "If it were only uncanceled!!!"

Pressing for the Answer

Using her calculator to punch in the correct numbers to utilize a formula for physics problems is Jacqy Selway.

One aspect of L.H.S. that has not had acclaim yet is the new technology offered to all students. In our scientific world today, this encompasses everything from calculators to computers. With cash register computers in stores, electronic games, and the full-fledged computers, science is the field of tomorrow. Just ask anyone to borrow his calculator — no science or math student can function without one. So watch out L.H.S. — the computers are coming!!!

What is sports at L.H.S.?

... It is the program designed to meet every need and desire of the student body and faculty alike, from women's volleyball to the popular football and track.

... It is the students themselves, involved and working hard to produce a winning team

... It is the coaches putting in long hours of hard work to achieve the perfection they strive for

... It is the variety offered, from intramural, to club, to varsity

... It is the large participation shown, and the fierce loyalty to the home team

... It is the L.H.S. student, running and jumping on cold winter days or lifting weights on hot summer ones

... and it is the feelings of the members of the cross-country team as they watch the L.H.S. runner cross the finish line in first place

Through all this, the sports at L.H.S. prove once again to be on top of the line.

The Mightiest of Minutemen

It was the year of the Minutemen. No one was about to get in the way of Tighe's determined squad in their quest for their first Middlesex League Crown, not undefeated Woburn or arch-rival Burlington. The one blemish on the Minutemen's record was a loss to Winchester. No doubt many of the gridders would give their left arms to play that game over again, as it proved to kill their Super Bowl chances.

The high point of the season came when Lexington trounced Woburn, 33-14, before a crowd of 10,000, halting the Tanner's 28-game unbeaten streak. This victory dispelled all doubts as to whether or not the Minutemen were for real. The coup de grace was the Thanksgiving Day 21-14 win over Burlington, giving Lexington sole possession of the league title and the right to chant: "We're number one!"

"Don't you poke me!" Mickey the dunce, Alleyoop, Caster the Muffin Man, optional practice, technique, Barry's imitations, the big 3-D, "What's blue and gold, has three heads, six arms, six legs, and weighs 720 pounds?" "I love the sound of clashing pads" Kee-ya! Sully's "Aaah!" "Who needs girls when you got these?" "Just a couple of things before we go out there," "I'll trade you for the 50th round draft choice in POP Warner no cash involved," I'll shoot that Radlo, Whip it, the streak ends here, Reggie on film, Thanks, Sam.

Teamwork and Togetherness gave the Minutemen an extra edge in their awesome season.

Girl Booters: A Most Successful Season

Outstanding talent and the expertise coaching of Mr. Matthews combined to produce the most successful girls' soccer team this school has ever had. Eleven of the teams' twenty strong, were returning varsity players. Their experience coupled with several welcome additions to the squad made Lexington a formidable opponent for any team. In the opening game, Lexington blanked Belmont 2-0 in an awesome display of teamwork and talent. Although there were a few bumps along the way, they finished the season by overwhelming Wakefield, 10-0.

For the first time in L.H.S. history, the girls entered the State Tournament. Their first post-season game was a triumphant one as the girls walked off the field with a 3-0 victory over Dover-Sherborn. They then came up against the arch-rival Winchester team which proved too powerful for the Lexington Maids.

The girls Varsity team ended their season with a 10-4-0 record which included six shutouts. The major reason for the girls' success was their outstanding teamwork and unity. For the team, the friendships gained were far more important than the win/loss columns.

Boys' Soccer: Not Just for Kicks

The Boys' Soccer team paid no heed to the doomsayers and prophets of mediocrity as they stormed their way to an impressive 12-2-4 regular season record. Under the supervision of new Coach Hartshorn, the Blue and Gold team fought their way through an injury-riddled season, ultimately making it to the North Division One finals before losing to Billerica, 3-1.

The only regular season losses Lexington had were at the hands of Watertown and Wakefield. Aside from these defeats the Minutemen were unstoppable and made it undefeated through three state tournament games when there had been serious doubts as to whether they would even make the States. Salem, Andover, and Somerville fell to Lexington in the tourney before Billerica brought their season to an end.

Co-Captain Peter Clough was an important element in the Minutemen's success, scoring many key goals and finishing second in scoring. Co-Captains Keith Anderson and Mike Sadeghpour unfortunately suffered injuries and couldn't contribute as much as they would have liked. The stingy net-minding of Mike Harris combined with the aggressive defense of fullbacks Gullotti, Rand, Speliotas, and Ellersick made it difficult for any opponent to score. Halfbacks Chris Fuery and Blake Gleason gave the team midfield strength, and quick Tim Kenney was always a scoring threat. Altogether the Boys' Soccer Team showed that a little bit of pride could go a long way.

Field hockey: Striving Stickwomen

The Lexington High School Varsity Field Hockey team reached its "realistic goal" this year, battling to a 7-7-4 record. The Middlesex League, traditionally the strongest in the state, proved to be exciting and tough. The team, coached by Ms. Sandra Curt, was known for its skilled stickwork and finesses.

The team was led by co-captains Jennifer McCabe and Miki Yoshino. The consistent play of seniors Judy Moran, Jennifer Dugan, Bonnie Scouler, Mary Conceison, and Jill Barres, was also very important to the outcome of the games.

Junior Michelle Ippolito carried on a long tradition, being the only Lexington player to be voted to the Middlesex League All-Star Team. Her incredible offensive and defensive skills combined to make her an excellent player.

Girls Volleyball: A Bright Beginning

The 1980 Girls' Varsity Volleyball Team, led by senior captain, Kerri Vafiades, started off its first season with an exciting build up.

Out of the forty students trying out for the team, fourteen girls were selected after three days of tryouts. After much practice and learning the legal rules of the game, coupled with plenty of effort and dedication, the team capped off the season with a swamping victory against the Wilmington Wildcats. Coach Larry Robinson gave encouragement and praise throughout the entire season.

The team's graduating seniors include: Kerri Vafiades, Leslie Sukeforth, Mary Ellen Chisholm, Margaret Lavin, Paula Finn, Kerry Jewell, and Debbie Neumann.

Next year's team will benefit from the experience and depth of Kym Stiglitz, who started and helped the team each game. Other returning players will include: Sheryl Bondy, Sharon Goldmacher, Nancy Goldberg, Gretchen Zarle, Susan Porter, and Susan Brown.

Next year's team will be expanded to Varsity and Junior Varsity to continue the spirit achieved in the 1980 season.

Cross-Country: Fleet Feet

A perennial league champ and state power, this year's boys' cross country team did not enjoy its customary success. The season was beset by untimely injuries to such crucial runners as Mark Rolincik and Jay Levine. The squad still ended with a good 5-4 record, which is very respectable in light of the tough competition in the Middlesex League.

The consistency of Steve Newlands and Charlie Ford, who placed 1-2 respectively in most meets, made Lexington a formidable opponent for any team. Co-Captains Art Hutchinson and Matt Burlage gave the team added depth.

The season ended on a good note, as Lexington salvaged some pride by placing twelfth in the Eastern Mass. Class A Meet.

The girls' cross country team had a similar season of ups and downs but could not manage to pull out a winning record, and finished at 4-5. Coached by Miss Lavin, the team ran with pride and enthusiasm. Maureen Mueller was a consistent top-finisher for the girls. Seniors Betsy White, Jenny Busiek, Carol Ruben, Laurie Curtis, and Captain Becky Jones were the backbone of the team.

Girls' Basketball: Too Hot to Handle

What can be said about Coach Sandy Curts' 1980-81 Girls' Basketball team? Nothing short of tremendous! After being a dismal fifth place in pre-season predictions, the Minutemaids astounded their opponents with a first place record half-way through the season by showing 8 wins and 1 loss. Although the Maids dropped the next two games, they won the next four in a row, which put them in a comfortable second place with three more games to go.

Coach Sandy Curts' confidence and hard work with the team pulled them together. Knowing almost instinctively their teammates' next moves, the Maids' strongest asset was their ability to work well as a team. The starting five members' confidence and excellent co-operation with each other spelled success. One other key factor was the depth of the bench. All members of the team were equally important and were strongly supportive of one another. With a mighty jay-vee team coming up, coached by Lianne Sullivan, the Maids can look forward to more victories in coming seasons.

We're ba-a-a-d! ... Celebration ... hot pinkies ... burns ... MJ goes to ref. school ... Shoot it JQ ... T's "THANK YOU!" ... jelly butt ... The African ... The Hughes Clan ... Evies jokes ... "What bulletin board, Jen?" ... Too-tall D ... feet ... Straws ... WAP! ... downtown ... the bench ... Sing-a-longs ... — bites the dust ... unbeatable jayvees ... Thanks, Miss Curt!

Boys' Basketball: Driving to the Hoop

When it comes to basketball, the name of Lexington is synonymous with success. This was once again verified by the 1981 Boys' Varsity who coasted their way right into the state tournament. The dynamic coach Bob Farias worked his Minutemen hard, and it showed throughout the season as the blue and gold team outhustled almost every team they played.

Leading the way for Lexington were Co-captains Mark Hedtler and Joe Partlow. Rebounding and inside strength were provided by Karl Nesline and "Marvelous" Marvin McIntyre. Curtis Price played a crucial part in the hoopsters' success by scoring many key points and playing tough defense all season long. Other seniors who contributed regularly were Lance Woodley and Daryle Brown. Juniors Bob Brennan and Lee Tyler also saw frequent playing time.

4 on the board . . . Can't be white, but . . . got any lotion? Zone-breaker, "go with the flow", flash cards, "no apples", "candy-ass", "bust a gut", a little light-headed, Mr. Farias' tape-jobs(a.k.a. "the Cast"), "happy as a clam".

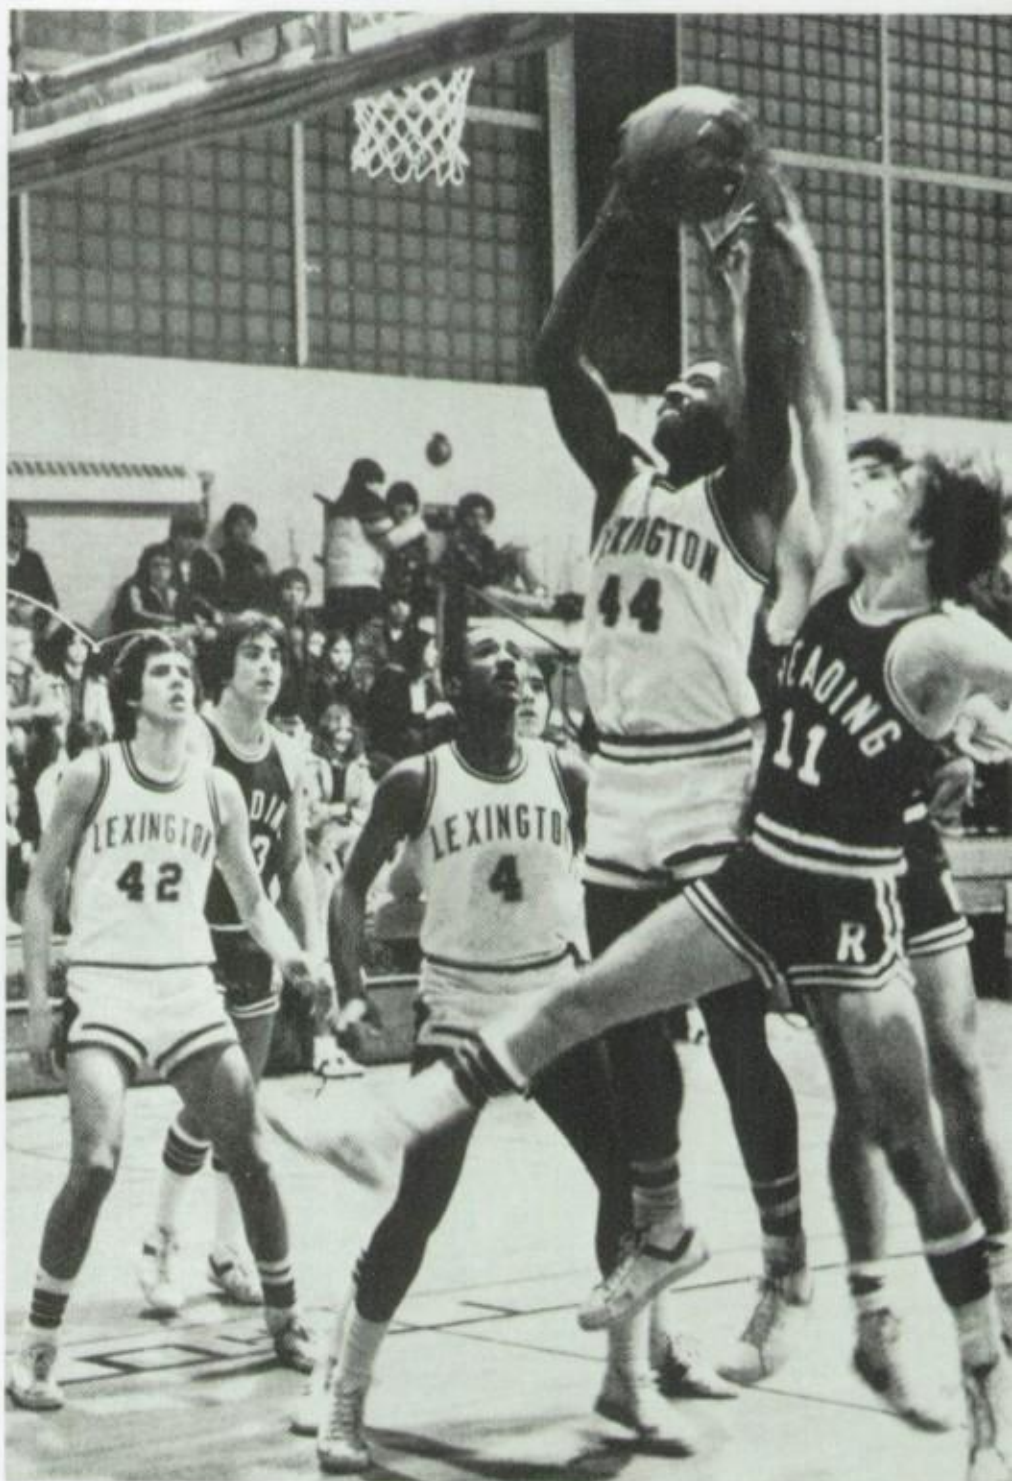

Bob Brennan brings the ball upcourt aggressively.

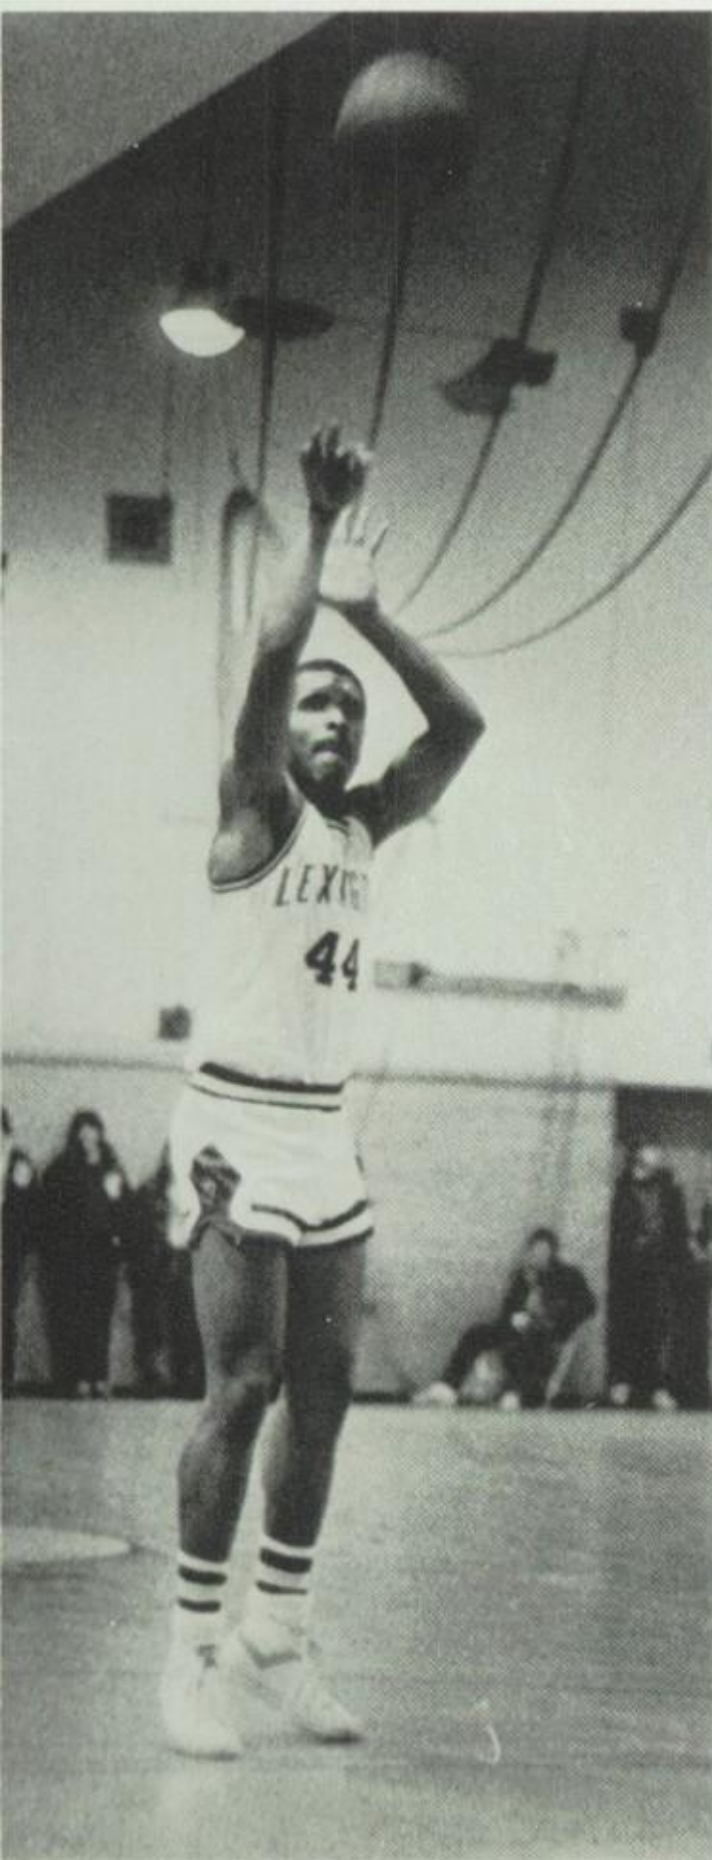

Concentrating intently on the hoop, Curtis Price shoots from the line.

Marvin MacIntyre(44) battles for two points, while Karl Nesline(42) and Lance Woodley (4) box out for the rebound.

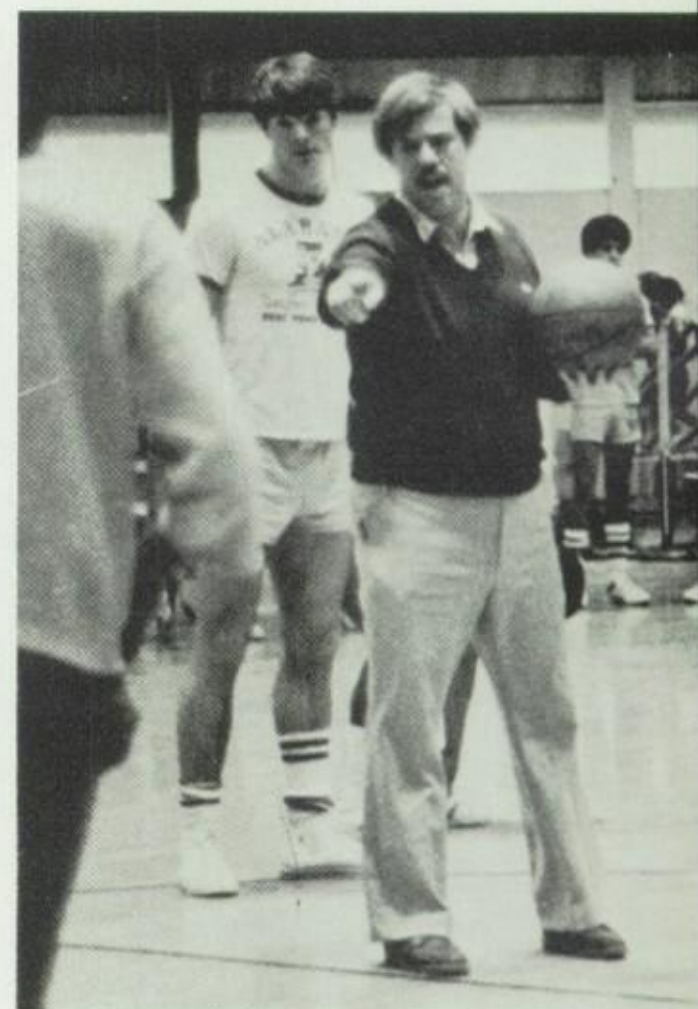

The starting five of Lexington shake hands before the start of the game.

Displaying perfect form at the line is Marvin MacIntyre.

Girls' Swimming: Racing to Victory

The 1980 Varsity Girls' Swim Team, led by captain Tina Reiling, swam an outstanding season with a 10-1 record.

The girls were strong throughout the season, demolishing most of their opponents. However, the traditionally tough Acton-Boxborough team proved a problem, the girls' only dual meet loss. Because of the phenomenal depth, coupled with determination and dedication by all of its members, the girls became the champs in both the Middlesex League and the Eastern Conference League.

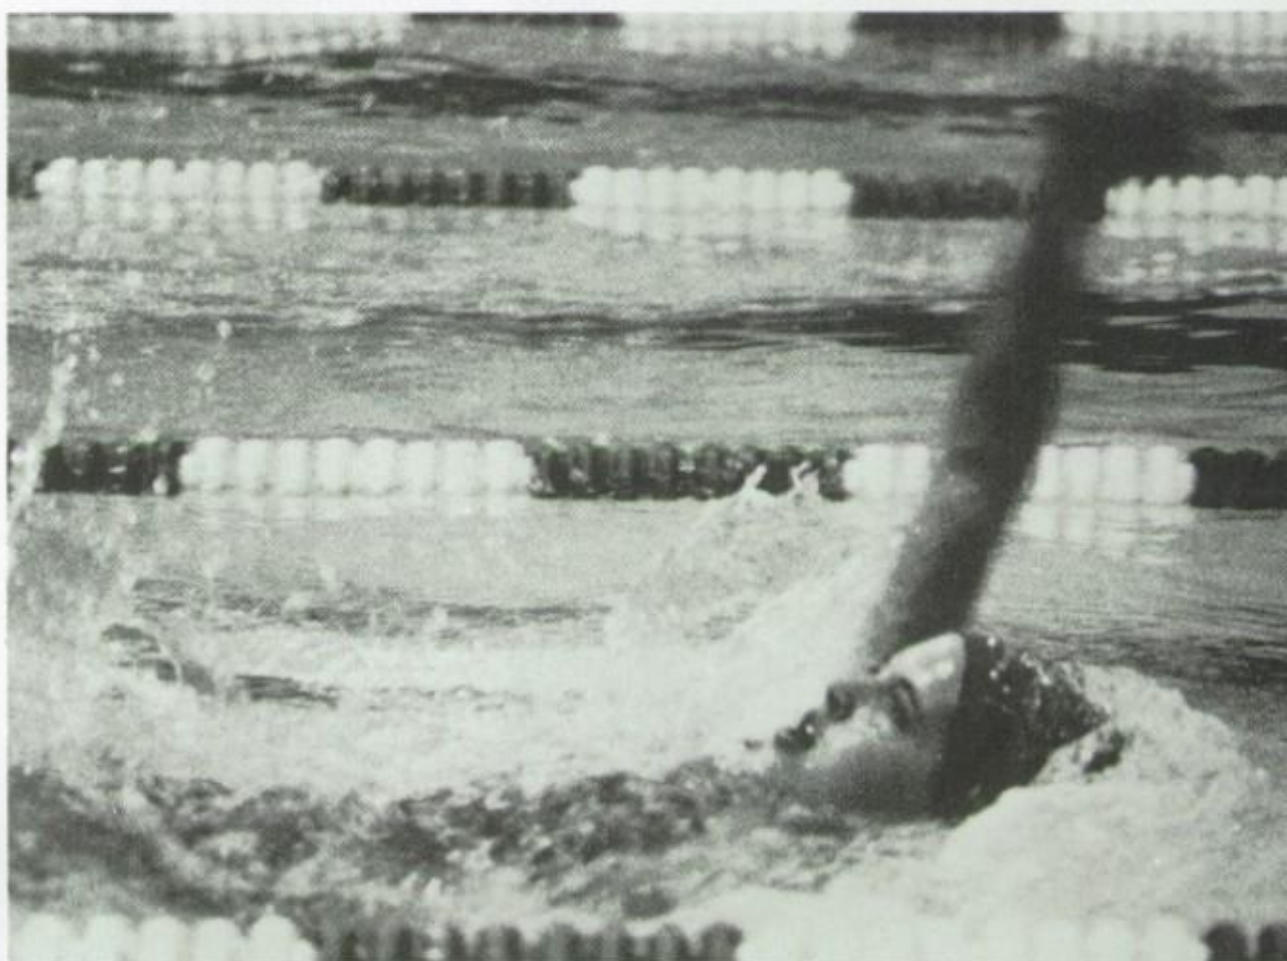

The team placed second at the Eastern Championships right below Acton. At the State Championship, the girls were even tougher and consequently performed beautifully to bring home third place — the best performance in the history of Lexington swimming. Those swimmers who performed exceptionally well, and for their outstanding job were named to the Globe All-Scholastic Team were State Champion diver, Karen Gerenz, and the 400-Freestyle Relay team of Wendy Johnson, Cheryl Klein, Lisa Scheidemantel, and Lisette Wong. This relay team also placed a remarkable second at States. Other valuable contributors named to the League All-Star team were Danielle Geissler, Audrey Ham, Lesley Ham, and Tina Reiling.

Get psyched . . . Can't we kick? . . . super spirit . . . Bananas . . . We're #1 . . . We will miss you, Tony!

With precision and grace, State Champion Karen Gerenz takes off for yet another perfect dive.

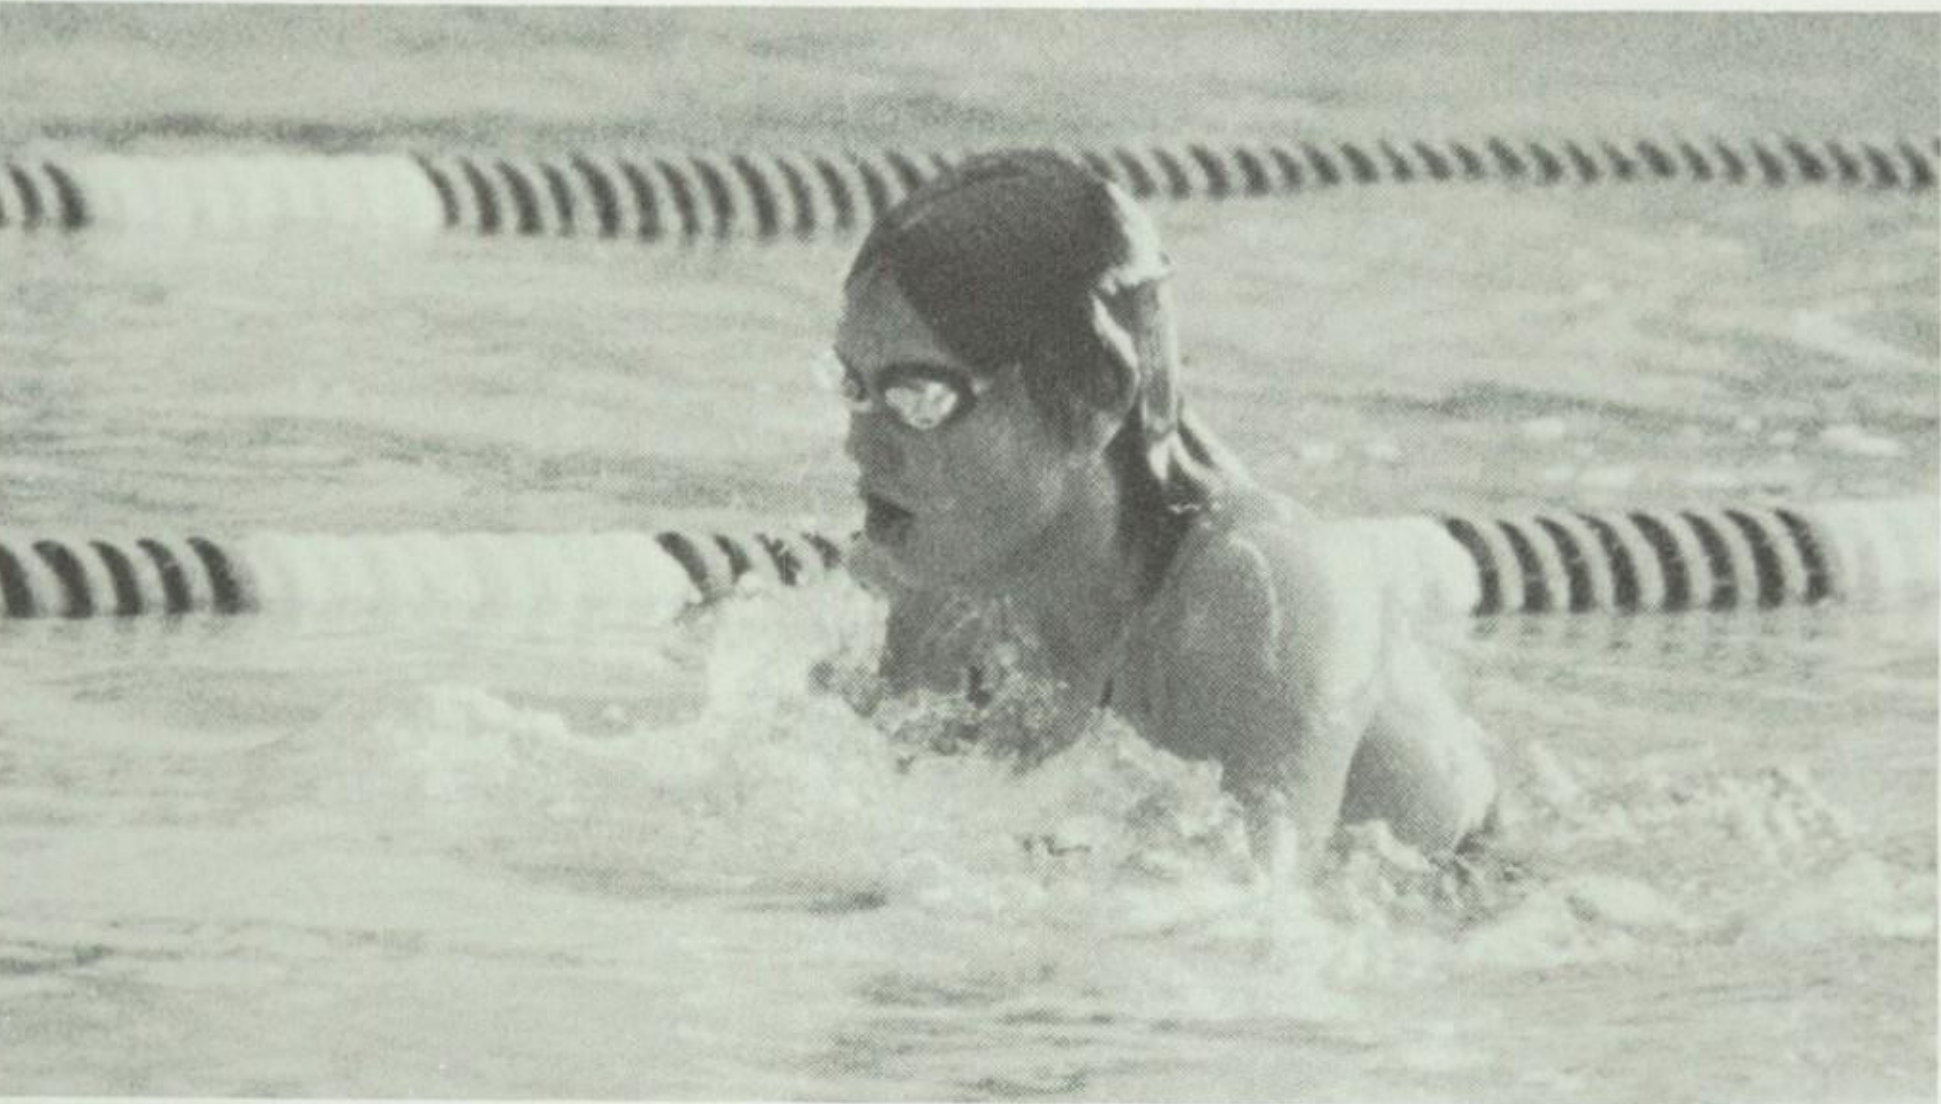

Capt. Tina Reiling awaits her heat to be announced.

Boys' Swimming: Poolsharks

At the completion of their season, the boys' swim team had reason for both celebration and regret. They enjoyed a successful season, but the announced retirement of Coach Tony Guerra, a mainstay in the Lexington Swimming program, was a blow to the team. After eleven years at the helm Guerra will be missed. In this, Guerra's last year, the Minutemen compiled an impressive record; their only two league losses were hard-fought struggles. They rebounded from an initial loss to Belmont, defeating Melrose, Watertown, and Wakefield. Following a wrenching loss to Winchester, the swimmers rallied to beat Burlington and thus secured a tie for second place in the Middlesex League.

Ten seniors will graduate from the team this year, including Co-captains Dick Johnson (a state-ranked backstroker), Bob Goudreau, and Peter Berggren. Also leaving are sprinters Rick Marble and Ted Lund, veterans Frank Werner, Jon Hardy, and Jeff Marlin, and divers Ron Dickerman and Mark Lunn. The future is still bright, and underclassmen such as Steve Jenkelson, Paul Larabee, Ken Anderson, and the record-breaking Dennis Spencer, should provide a solid foundation for continued success. Ricka-Racka-Chee again? ... Count? how do you count? Biff, thanks, Karen and Pam ... Oh no, pyramids, good-bye, Tony, and THANKS!

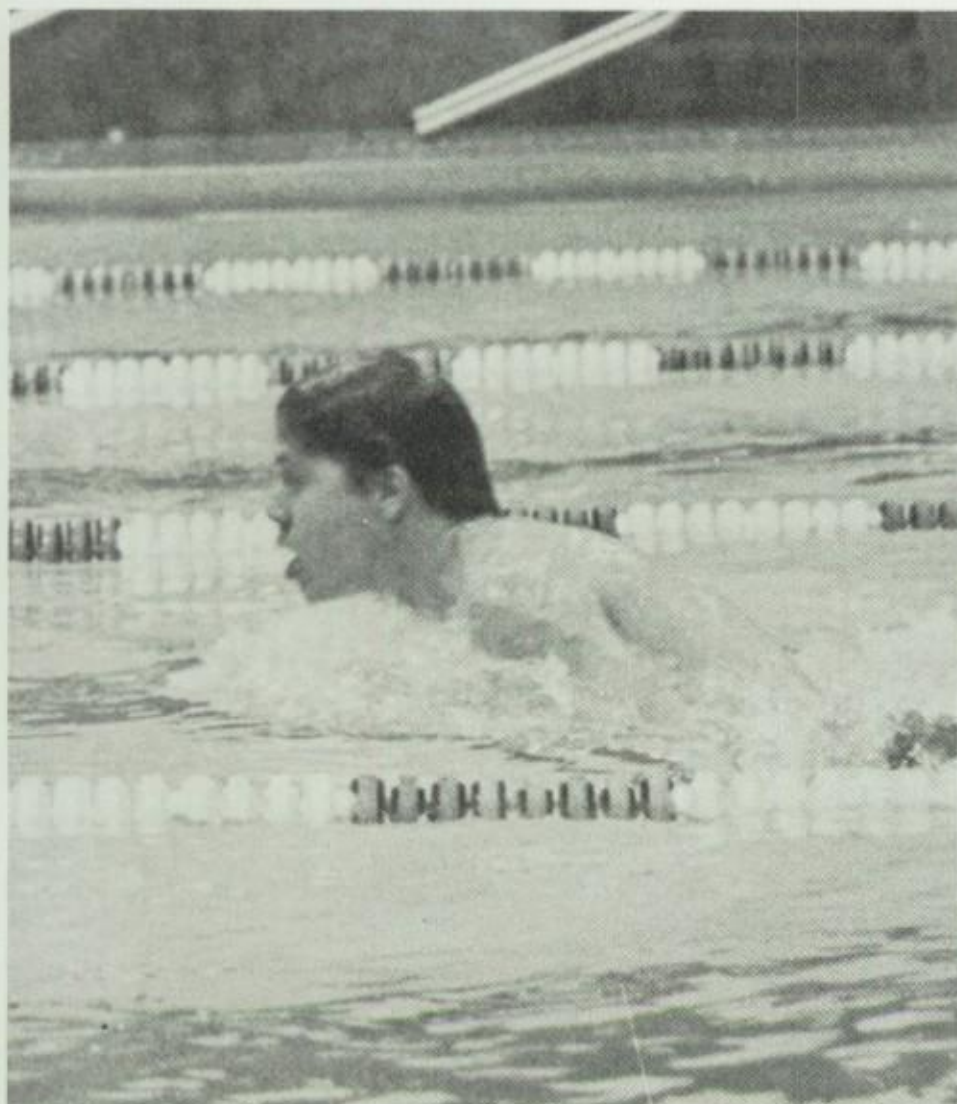

Coach Tony Guerra, holding son Joey who has helped make Lexington a league and state power in swimming, announced his retirement this year.

Powering his way to the finish is Dick Johnson, one of Lexington's finest.

Co-captain Bob Goudreau churns ahead in possession of the lead.

Triumphant Tracksters

The Lexington Girls' Indoor Track Team ended its season with an undefeated record of 6-0. For the first time in school history, the team clinched the coveted title of Middlesex League Champions. This, however, was not an easy task. Each year the team's desire to win increased only to face a higher level of competition. Unlike past seasons, however, this year the girls possessed not only the desire but the talent to rise above the competition.

Co-captain Mary Conceison and Lisa Dunn led the tracksters to victory by stressing the importance of team unity and spirit. The daily warm-ups and weekly pre-meet cheers in the field house was evidence to onlookers of their championship status. There were many strong, capable girls who performed beyond expectation, and all the girls are to be commended for their determination and spirit.

Boys' Indoor Track: Life in the Fast Lane.

It was a disappointing year for the boys' track team. Contrary to their usual league championship style, the tracksters finished the season with a 4-5 record. Their losses came at the hands of perennial rivals, Reading and Woburn, and to the much improved teams of Winchester, Melrose, and Burlington. Reasons for this disheartening season were numerous, but a lack of frontline talent certainly was not one of them. Contributing consistently throughout the season were seniors Andy White, Bill Drury, Charlie Ford, Tim Kenney, and Co-captains Dave Shaw and Steve Newlands. The few juniors who ran for the varsity team were Marco Dirks, Brad Chervin, and David Soderstrom.

"For all intensive purposes", Bill's hair, Dicky, Kenney's long distance training, Gabba-Gabba, Friday nights with Valerie, "combining speed with savy," Hingehead, Not-so-sweet Lou, the Marines, Thanks for the pain, Mr. D, and the pleasure, Girls' Gymnastics team.

Wrestling: Strength, Stamina, and Sweat

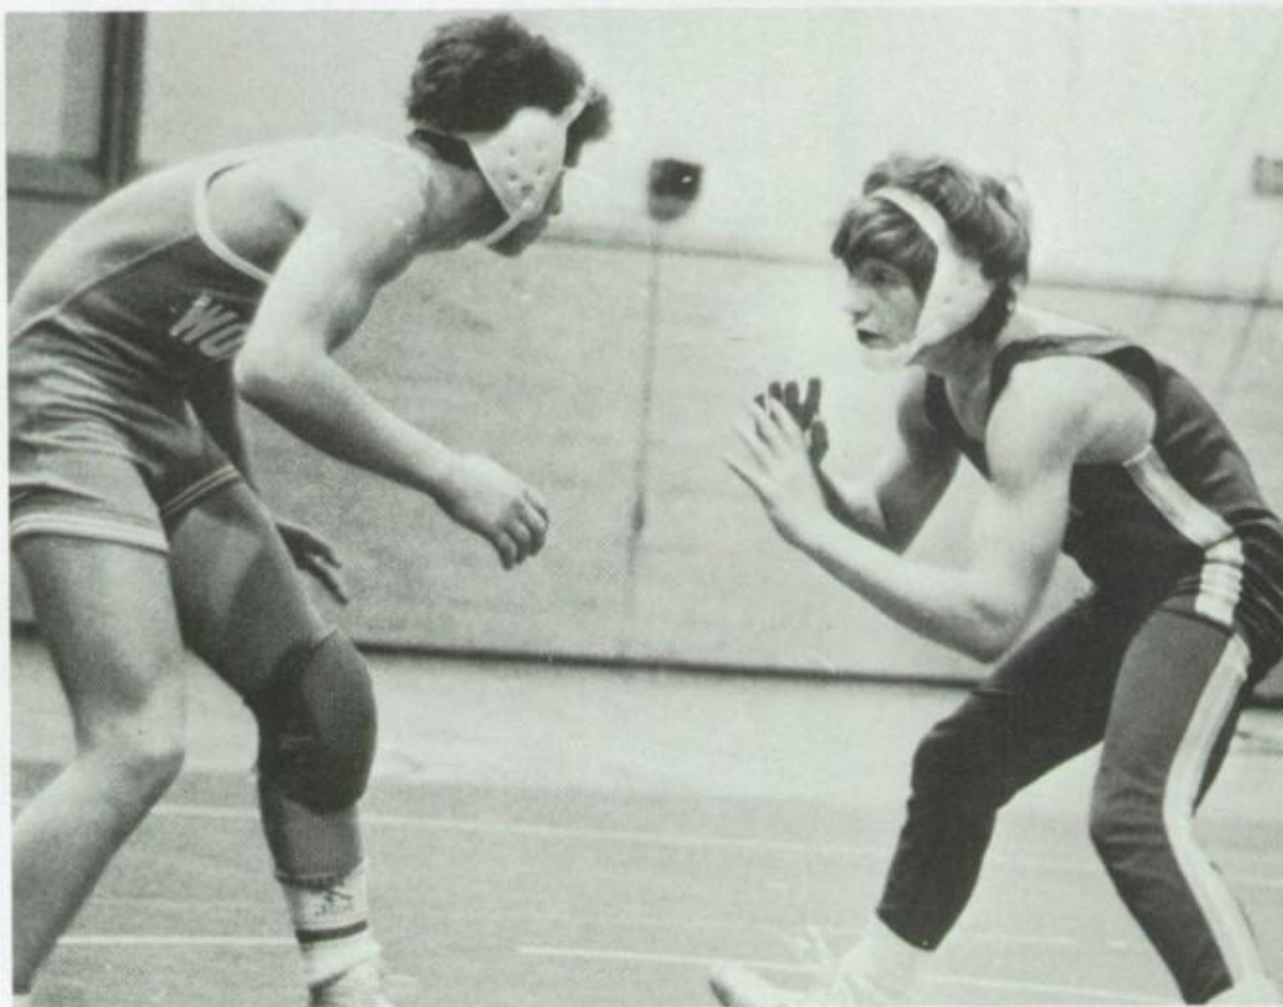

It was a tough year for the wrestling team, as they had to battle their way through every meet. With the devoted and thorough guidance of Coach Sam Kafrissen and Assistant Coach John Sullivan, the matmen were able to complete the season with a respectable record.

The grapplers relied heavily on points from the upper-weight classes, led by Co-captains Greg Smith and Tom Fernandes. Also filling these spots were Bob McGlaughlin and Junior wrestlers Eric Feingold and Dana Busa. In the lower weight class senior David Levine made a fine showing and kept the team in contention. Other veterans included juniors Aram Kaligian and Andy Macey, and newcomers Ted Burton, Chris Chapman, Jack Perrney, and Gene Chiang completed the squad.

Superb individual performances throughout the season proved Lexington's ability to produce outstanding wrestlers. The future of the team is bright, assuming that the dedication of its members and the tutelage of the coaches continues at its high level.

All Right, stretch 'em out! up, Simba, Aaww, he looks like a fish! Hit it! Time for some Smitty drills . . . Are these guys supposed to be good? Up, Aram, up! You're how much over? A minute and a half, Macey, fight it! Break 'em down! win or lose, L.H.S. wrestling is #1.

Hockey: Icy Hot

Untimely losses hurt the hockey team this season, but nonetheless they had a very respectable year. Under the direction of new head coach Bill McDuff, Lexington offered stiff competition for any team in the league. The Minutemen skaters had to overcome an inconsistent defense, but an explosive offensive attack effectively offset this weakness.

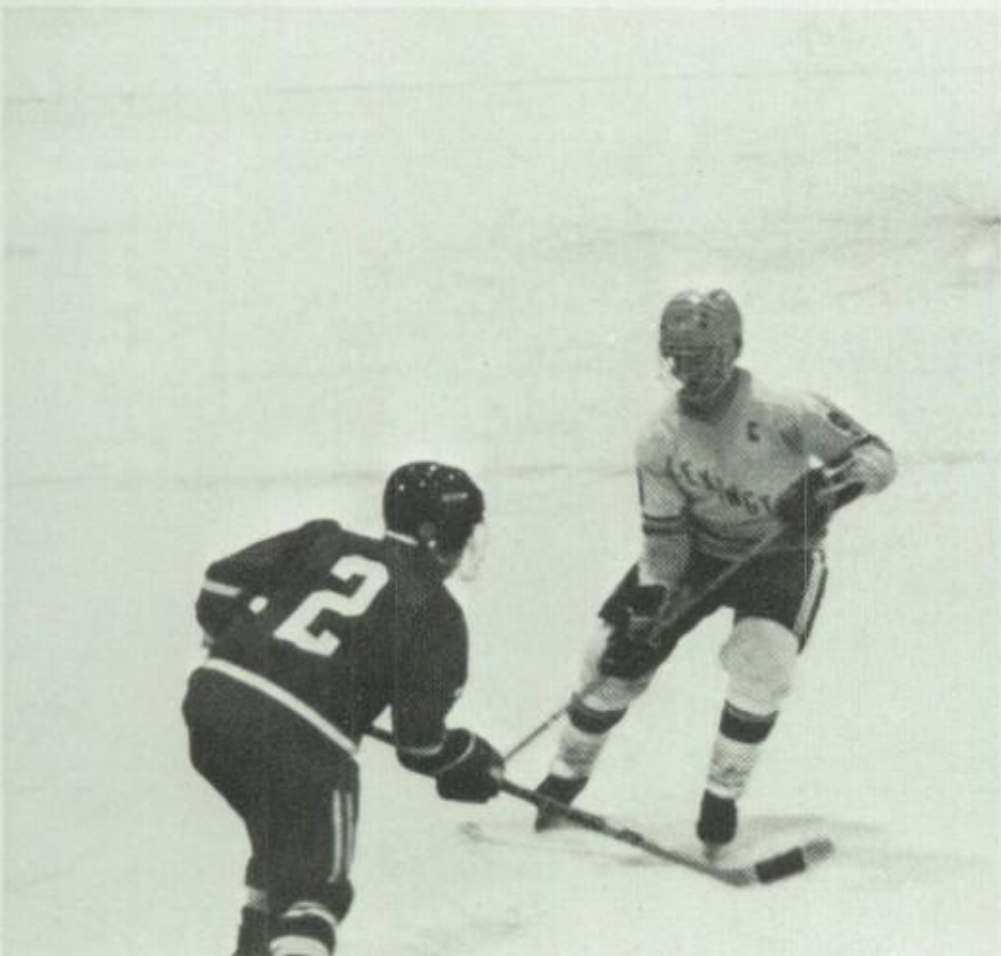

Members of this feared scoring machine were Co-captains Mike Sadeghpour and John Coughlin, and seniors Chris Hinkle, Bob Provost, and Brad Tercho. Johnny Gill had an outstanding year, and his aggressive, hustling style of play strengthened the team. The junior corps of the team featured defenseman Pat Barbieri, scoring standout Robbie Good, and hardplaying Eric Faiola. A talented crew of sophomores completed the picture and gives reason to start thinking about state tournament possibilities for next year's hockey team. Parallel Success

The Girls' Gymnastic team continued to follow their trend of excellence throughout the 1980-1981 season. The Minutemaids were coached to another fantastic year by Debbie Smith and led by Co-captains Laurie Parker and Terri Maguire. Having only seven returning Varsity members made it a year of adjustment, intense dedication and learning for many of the gymnasts. Although their success was in question at the beginning of the season, fortitude and determination created a bright outlook as the meets approached. Perseverance was shared by all the team members, and this attitude allowed the team to overcome all obstacles. The result was a victorious season.

The Boys' Gymnastics team did not fare as well as their female counterparts; They finished the season with a record of 0 wins and 8 losses. The team is very optimistic for next year, however, because of the strong showing this year by sophomores Ted Ford, Chris Moore, and Jeff Mello. The team was led by Co-captains Steven Boyd and Sung Ho Kim, who competed in most every event.

Catch the Fever

Lexington has always produced competitive teams in the spring, and this season should be no different. Continuing their winning ways will be the boys' baseball team, led by seniors Chris Fuery, Cecil Cox, Tim Lima, Tony Gullotti, and coached by Chuck Hunt. The girls' softball team, backed by a tradition of excellence, looks forward to another promising season. Returning veterans, Co-captains Jill Barres and Pam Sidman, plus Beth Keegan and Allison Brown, will provide the backbone for the team.

A relatively new sport at LHS, but one that is booming in popularity, is Lacrosse. Last year's season for the boys and girls showed signs of strong potential, and Coaches Ron Dumont and Pat Leary anticipate an even better season this spring. The girls track team should be a contender for the League title, since the indoor track team was the League Champion. The attitude is slightly less optimistic for the boys, but with runners like Steve Newlands and Greg Smith competing, they will be a tough opponent for any team. Not to be overlooked are the boys' and girls' tennis teams. Under the guidance of Coaches George Meechem and Edward Good and with players like Paul Rolincik and Wendy Wood, the tennis teams are respected throughout the state. The 1981 spring sports season promises to be a continuation of a longstanding Lexington High winning tradition.

Man of the Year: Service and Devotion

Another look at Ev on the job.

Many people may not know who Everett Henry is, but everyone has met Evie the Busdriver at least once. Evie, as all his friends know him, has been driving for the Lexington School System for over twenty years. He has seen all the athletes from Glen Hyde, Ron Lee, and Wilbur Wood to Laura Hoffman and Gene Mewborn. Evie is a dedicated fan of any sport whether it be baseball or girls' tennis. It's an honor for a young high school athlete to listen to Evie's stories of spectacular games he had once seen. Evie enjoys telling of his past experiences such as watching Ron Lee play Lexington High School basketball and Glen Hyde, who played for the Denver Broncos, play LHS football. Ev is as lovable as a grandfather, and to some he is just that; an exciting man with great tales to tell. From all who have ridden on his bus, we love you!!!

In his familiar position, Ev greets the players as they board the bus.

Who are the people who make up L.H.S?

... They are the entire administration, always working toward making our school a better environment in which to learn

... They are the faculty, always there and always helping us, whether with a math problem, an essay, some creative art, or just for a talk.

... They are those on the faculty who extend themselves to cover other areas of education, such as coaching or advising

... and they are the students, from the new and uncertain sophomores to the confident and determined juniors, to the carefree yet hard-working seniors

These are the diverse and changing people of L.H.S., a clear picture of a school which is on top of the line.

The Sophomore Experience

When school began, and we entered as sophomores, it seemed as if it would be impossible to get from one class to another in five minutes, but after the first week of school everyone seemed to know where he was going. But, it still appears that we are always running to get from J to A or D in the five minutes of passing time allowed. A sophomore had to get used to going outside to get from one class to another, and thought it horrible when it began to grow cold, and when it rained . . . ! Another difficulty in adjusting to the High School was trying to find which one of the six cafeterias one's friends were eating in — just looking for a familiar face could take up the entire lunch period itself.

We were permitted to pick what we wanted to take for gym, but if one's name came at the end of the alphabet, then he probably got something he did not want, just as it was at the Junior Highs. Open campus would be nice, but sophomores have to wait for what seems like eternity when sitting in boring study halls. After having gone through mini-arena making corrections in scheduling everyone admits that it's time for a vacation. Although sophomore life is hectic and different, we are repeatedly told, "Just wait 'til you're juniors!"

Soph Talk

In the fall of every new year Sophomores are faced with learning to cope in a strange and new environment. A conversation between sophs might go something like this:

"Meet me at my locker in J-house."

"Where's J-house?"

"In back of G-house, you know!"

"Oh, where right. But where are you going for lunch?"

"C-house, but I don't have 2nd lunch."

"Oh, that's right. What's the lunch block today?"

"E-block."

"It can't be! There's no E-block on Thursdays!"

"Just forget it. I'll meet you after school in the Senior Quad."

"Is that anywhere near the field-house?"

"No, it's by J-house."

"Great!"

By the spring, this conversation may be obsolete, and these same sophomores have made it through a whole year. By now, J-house is a common word, as is C-cafeteria. Having grown and mastered their first year here, the sophomores are now ready to tackle their next job-JUNIOR YEAR!

Joining Forces

In September the separate junior high schools Clarke, Diamond and Muzzey entered their first year of High School. The three separate schools have now bonded into one group—the Class of 1983.

We have grown tremendously this past year, constantly meeting new challenges. We have had the opportunity to expand our friendships with new acquaintances. Some friendships grew while others faded, but through our experiences we have learned a little bit more about each other.

As sophomores we developed a better appreciation of time after having so little of it. We now eagerly look forward to a lighter schedule next fall, although we are told this is not true. It was difficult at first to discover exactly what was expected of us as high school students, but as Juniors we will have ultimately found the key.

We have much pride for our school, and this is shown when one sees each individual striving for his or her own goals. High School is a very busy time in life with many important decisions to make and ever-increasing responsibilities, but high school years can also be some of the best years in one's life. The Class of 1983 intends to make them that way.

A Brighter Beginning

It isn't easy going to LHS these days. Besides trying to survive in a highly pressured academic environment, students must try to survive world changes. A pair of pants can cost up to forty dollars, the American hostages in Iran, and a new president has just been elected. We wonder, is there much hope for the near future? Well, the underclassmen of 1981 would like to offer an optimistic viewpoint.

The U.S. hockey team won an Olympic gold medal, there's a new Charlie's Angel although nobody really cares, woman now make up one half of the delegates at the Democratic National Convention, the Canadian Embassy in Teheran masterminded the escape of six American hostages, Jackie Gareau finally got the credit she deserved for running the Boston Marathon, over 38 thousand women now attended law school, solar heat is being subsidized, thirty million people have quit smoking since 1964, T.V. programs are now close-captioned for the deaf, and Richard Pryor will be able to make us laugh once again. With all these achievements, as well as the phenomenal success of our nation's space program, the country certainly has something to look forward to — a brighter future!

Junior Headaches

During Junior year everybody is faced with a great deal of potentially life-threatening decisions. First of all one has to keep his grades up, because this is the last full year in school before applying to colleges. And from what everyone hears, it's a hair-tearing process. Secondly, Junior year is the year of the BIG TESTS: PSAT's, SAT's, and Achievements. And for those especially gifted hardworkers, the Advanced Placements. So, besides studying diligently for all of these important tests, everyone wonders what to do with his spare time. Sometimes those few minutes are so precious that they are spent just talking with friends, other times our ambitions get the best of us and we start job-hunting. Then there are volunteer postions at L.H.S. that are always looking for members. Through it all, stay cool, we will make it. Just wait 'til next year!

IN HONOR OF . . .

It seems as though the general consensus among adults is that teenagers and students are selfish and uncaring. They assume that we think only of ourselves and that we would not lift a finger to help another. Well, the students at LHS are proving that theory wrong, and that we are the top of the line in all aspects of life.

Last summer, in a tragic diving accident that left him paralyzed below the chest, the Junior class lost one of their most admired members — Danny Murphy.

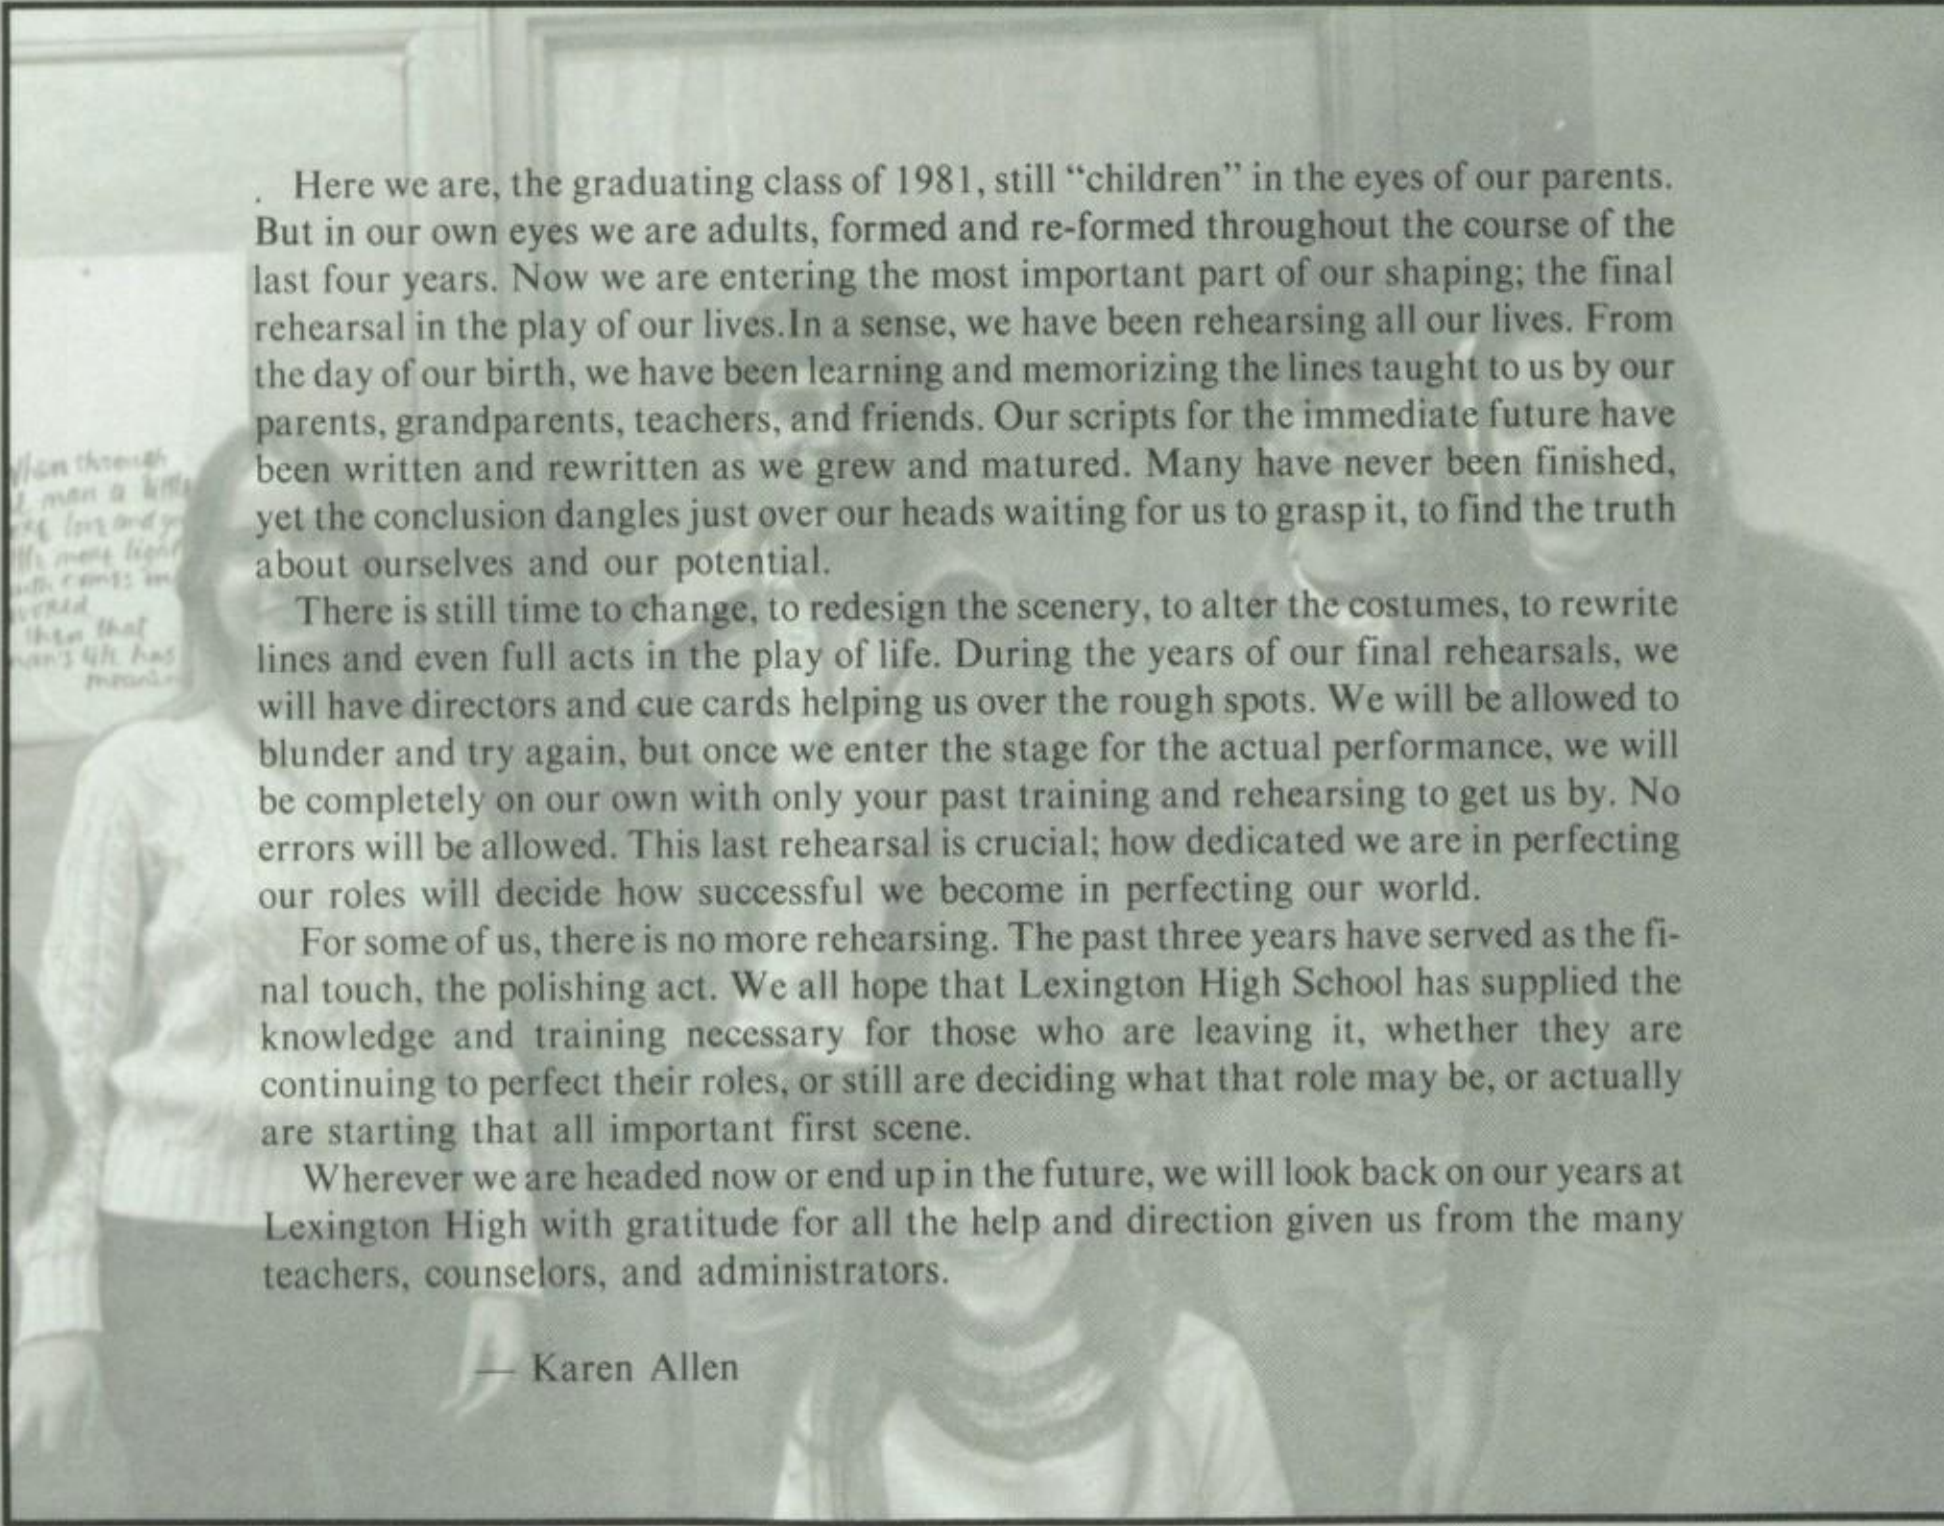

But, although Danny spent most of this fall in the hospital, no one gave up on him, least of all the President of the Junior Class and his close friend

Becca Rotberg.

Becca, with a lot of support from LHS students and the Junior Class Council, organized a fund-raising effort to help Danny. LHS'ers distributed collection cannisters for donations, and in many classes students emptied their pockets. Early in the year a benefit concert was held and the number of people that attended boosted their efforts still further.

Lastly, in November, a fund-raising dinner was held which Danny attended as Guest of Honor. With this tragic event the students at LHS have once again proven that they have the compassion and spirit it takes to help a friend in need.

Watch out, 'cause
We're on Top!!!

Here we are, the graduating class of 1981, still "children" in the eyes of our parents. But in our own eyes we are adults, formed and re-formed throughout the course of the last four years. Now we are entering the most important part of our shaping; the final rehearsal in the play of our lives. In a sense, we have been rehearsing all our lives. From the day of our birth, we have been learning and memorizing the lines taught to us by our parents, grandparents, teachers, and friends. Our scripts for the immediate future have been written and rewritten as we grew and matured. Many have never been finished, yet the conclusion dangles just over our heads waiting for us to grasp it, to find the truth about ourselves and our potential.

There is still time to change, to redesign the scenery, to alter the costumes, to rewrite lines and even full acts in the play of life. During the years of our final rehearsals, we will have directors and cue cards helping us over the rough spots. We will be allowed to blunder and try again, but once we enter the stage for the actual performance, we will be completely on our own with only your past training and rehearsing to get us by. No errors will be allowed. This last rehearsal is crucial; how dedicated we are in perfecting our roles will decide how successful we become in perfecting our world.

For some of us, there is no more rehearsing. The past three years have served as the final touch, the polishing act. We all hope that Lexington High School has supplied the knowledge and training necessary for those who are leaving it, whether they are continuing to perfect their roles, or still are deciding what that role may be, or actually are starting that all important first scene.

Wherever we are headed now or end up in the future, we will look back on our years at Lexington High with gratitude for all the help and direction given us from the many teachers, counselors, and administrators.

A Special Thanks

Advising and putting together a yearbook is a difficult task. Over the past years our advisor Margaret Kinley has been an experienced and helpful asset to the production as she oversees each part of the book. Without her knowledge and guidance, the books would not have been such a success nor would they have captured the life of Lexington High School to the extent that they did. We all were unhappy to hear of her retirement in the coming year, as we will miss a good teacher and advisor. The past and present yearbook staffs wish her the best of luck and success in the coming years, and in whatever she endeavors.

Miss Kinley takes a moment out from her heavy schedule.

Miss Kinley grins with the passing of the Final Yearbook deadline.

Teacher Mrs. Engelberg, Jean Dante, Cindy Doane and Debbie Neumann help make the Senior Citizens Dinner a great success.

Top of the Line

This year has been a great one for Lexington High School, and the credit for this must go to its students. Though diverse in their interests, LHS students have an incredible ability to work together and make any venture they embark on a successful one. All school functions, from the Senior Citizen's Dinner to the Stomper's Concert, were a challenge to organize, but these challenges were met and overcome as each successive event proved to be as popular as the one before. This overwhelming student involvement shows that school spirit is obviously alive in each of the three classes. The events of the year were able to provide an enjoyable diversion to the routine of studying, and it is when diversions such as these are supplied that a school year becomes special and stands out in the midst of all the rest. As well as participating in a numerous variety of social functions, students were also able to cheer many of their athletic teams on to victories. From sports to special events in 1980-1981, it was obvious that LHS was superior, and it was the students who continually made the school come out on Top of the Line.

This history class demonstrates a bit of originality as they stage out Dickens' A Tale of Two Cities.

Jim Renfro and Robert John show their talent with the trumpet.

Here they come!!!

Photographer Ricky Groves focuses on a distant subject.

To stir up spirit before a big game, this "football" adorns the Main Hall.

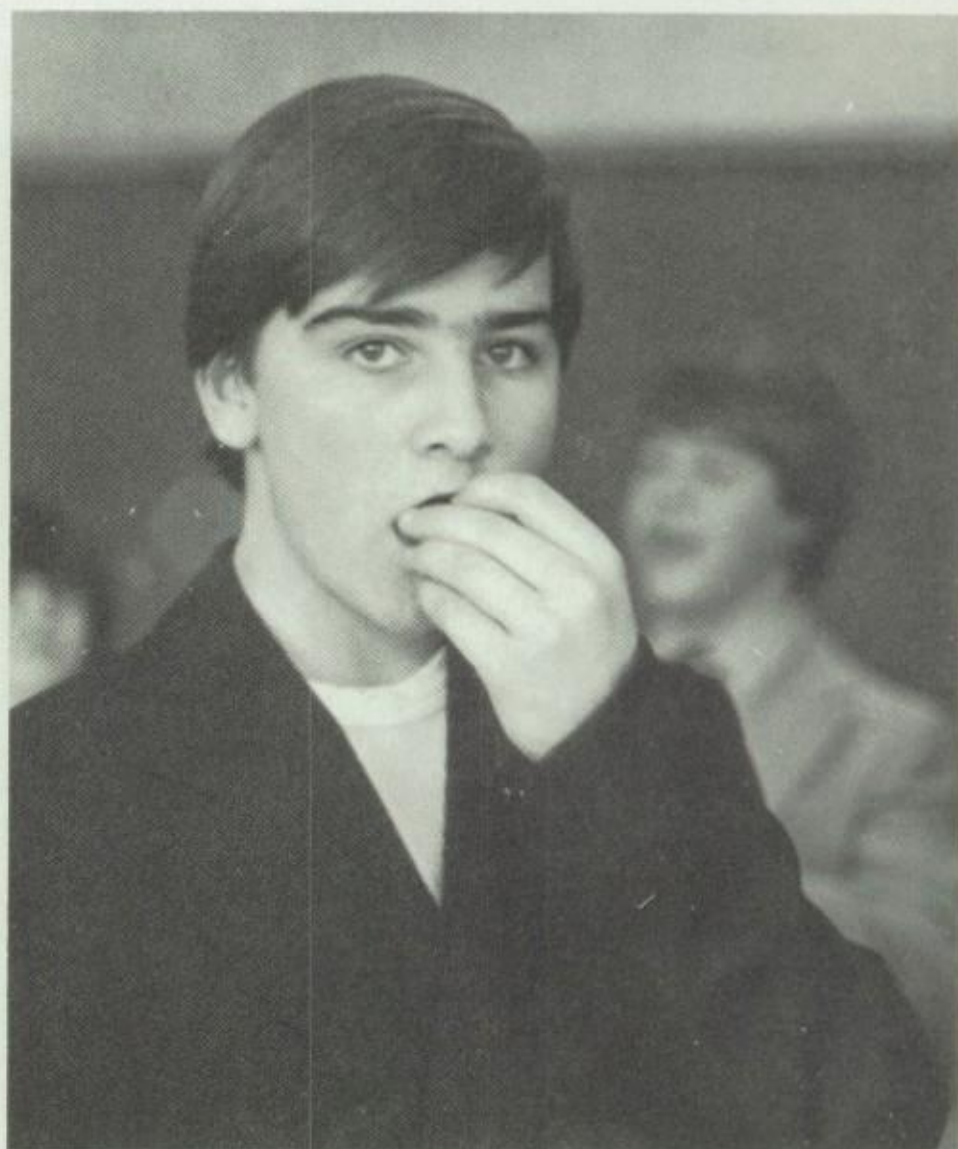

Debi Parr, Paul Brandes and Bronwen Pugh pause to chat during one of their many frees of Senior Slump.

Regina Antwine strikes a pose for this adept cameraman.

Caught munching at a class party is Stephen O'Brien.

And there they go!!!

Acknowledgements

The experience of putting together the 1981 Yearbook was both challenging and rewarding. I learned to deal with many different people, in order to achieve the success which I feel this book has gained. My special thanks must go to Miss Margaret Kinley, our advisor and guide, who was always there to help when we needed her. Also thanks to Mr. Roswell Farnham, who was there time and again to provide us with pictures on short notice. Lastly, my thanks go to Mr. John Carrier, our yearbook representative, who had an answer for our every question. Thank you all.
